FOR NEXT GOVERNOR OF PENNSYLVANIA

ADJT. GEN. D. H. HASTINGS,

Subject to the decision of the Republican State Convention

EDITORIAL BRIEFS

NELLIE BLY, the "Globe Trotter, will lecture in Harrisburg on Friday evening, March 7th.

THE sale of ex-President Cleveland's country place in Washington can indicate two very opposite things—that he never expects to live in Washington again, or that he is realizing means to help him live there again.

JAMES G BLAINE has aged very much this winter. His domestic afflictions have crushed his proud heart, and done more to furrow his cheeks and whiten his hair than years of political disappointments. The honors highest political no longer possesse the attraction that they did when he was surrounded by an unbroken family circle.

JEROME B. NILES, late Auditor General, will be a candidate for the Republican Congressional nomination in the Sixteenth district, composed of Tioga, Lycoming, Clinton and Potter. Clinton County is likely to present a candidate in the person of H. T. Harvey, of the Lock Haven bar. Congressman McCormick, who now represents the district, is serving his second term, and will have a strong support for re-nomination if he desires it.

Dispcaable Methods,

The Republicans of Indiana have discovered that Chairman Andrews, of the State committee, acting for himself and G. Wallace Delamater, has captured temporarily the Indiana Republican county committee and is actually trying to seize the Indiana delegation to the State Convention as he did that of Cambria. Way back in December last Chairman Andrews went to Pittsburg and saw County Chairman Langham, of Indiana.

The gossips of Indiana say that Mr. Langham was ordered to immediately create a Delamater boom in Indiana through the county committee members. Gossips also say that Mr. Langham was amply provided with funds to pay the expenses of this campaign. The Indiana chairman obeyed orders with promptness and in detail. A Delamater hustler was set at work in every township and in every school district. Not only was this accomplished with as much haste as possible but the county press was also served. Within a short time after Chairman Langham's visit to Pittsburg, several county papers published editorials lauding Mr. Delamater as the young candidate of young Republicans.

The wording of these notices were slightly different, but the substance was the same. The Indiana Messenger was offered the same thing and refused to print it, although the editor was informed by one of the Delamater managers that the other papers had "made a good thing out of it." The Messenger was for Hastings, is still for him, or anybody but Delamater.

Then Candidate Delamater arrived on the scene early in January and was trotted about the town by Chaiman Langham. He was taken to the barber shops, stores, offices, hotel lobbies, and held corner consultations just as if he was running for Constable instead of the dignified office of Governor. The Indiana Progress had been publishing editorials favoring Stone for Governor, but Mr. Delamater held a private conversation with Editor Moorhead, and the Progress since then has been noisily for Delamater.

Already popular indignation runs so high that several of the avowed Andrews crowd regret their action. Delagates pledged against Delemater and for the field, consisting of Montooth, Hastings, Osborne, and Stone will be nominated and elected. An attempt has been talked of by the Andrews men to have the primaries a month earlier by indignant protests. The Republicans of Indiana are now fully awake, and there is no danger of a repitition of the shameful outrage perpetrated in Cambria county.

The above is simply one instance of the numerous places in which Delamater and his gang are practicting the same despicable method, but it is consoling to see that the people are getting their eyes open to the deception.

Hastings for the Close Counties.

The Doylestown Daily Intelligencer, of last Wednesday, very wisely says:

As the close counties are quickest to see and recognize the importance of political action and the vantage ground of any position, so it is to them of most vital importance that nominations and platforms of great party conventions should be entirely worthy and satisfactory. In those counties where there are large majorities weight of party preponderance generally carries the local election without much reference to State and National contests.

In Pennsylvania there are 41 counties in which there are large party majorities. To these it matters less, in the effect upon their local elections, as to State nominations and candidates. On the contrary there are 26 counties in which the majorities are within a few hundreds. These are the counties to which it is important that the State Convention should make a wise and satisfactory choice of candidates for the State ticket and place them upon a broad and strong platform of able and sincere Republicanism.

Bucks county is one of the close counties. It has been growing closer and closer for several years past, and upon a full poll and fair count it cannot to-day be claimed by the party which has dominated in the past. For three terms out of the last four Bucks county has had Republican Sheriffs; for two terms of the same number Republican Commissioners have wrought great economies in the public expenditures; a like change is shown at the almshouse under Republican rule; Republican Recorders, a Register, Pronthonotaries and several clerks of courts have given honest and satisfactory service. So all along the line—we shall have something to say about Democratic Treasurers in a few days.

The Republicans of Bucks county are all right upon the local issues up to this time. They can and will make a good showing of their cause, and will ask the support of the voters of the county, this year, on local officers, upon the grounds of efficiency, economy and reform which they can exhibit over Democratic administrations of the past. There are large and substantial savings to the citizens of the county by Republican boards of officers over what Democratic administrations of the past have done. Now all we need to make a successful campaign, in this close county of Bucks, is satisfactory results in the State and Congressional conventions.

No one man is a necessity to any place and party. The Republican organization is too large and too able for that. But there are men who are prominently mentioned for these high places—General Hastings for Governor, for instance—who would most eminently fill the bill, and whose nomination would do everything that could be done to make the local fight in Bucks county a success.

The interests of 25 other close counties are doubtless very similar to those of Bucks county, and if so the Republicans of those counties must be equally interested in the nomination of an entirely satisfactory and acceptable candidate for the head of the Republican State ticket this year. Without disparagement to many able and eminent men of high character and standing in the party, General Hastings more than any one else, combines the characteristics, experience, personality and abilities to make the most available and eligible candidate for the party generally and especially for the close counties.

In the event of a harmonious and satisfactory Republican convention, honorably conducted and worthy in its outcome, probably Mr. Pattison will not be a candidate. Should there be any other result most likely the ex-Gov. will be a candidate before the Democratic Convention and it would not be surprising to see the experience of 1882 repeated.

While then the Democratic situation is changing rapidly and suggestively the situation is still within the control of the Republicans, and should the latter act wisely and well the plans and calculations of the Democrats will go or naught. Within a few weeks the situation will develop and probably by the first of April a very clear estimate of what is coming may be made. Active work is in progress upon both sides of the political fence, and events of importance, while not heralded by a brass band, will most likely come to pass, within a few weeks, which will have a most important influence upon the determination of a successor to Governor Beaver.

Wanamaker a Calamity to the Republican Party.

The time has fully come when the Republican press of the country should demand a halt upon the Postmaster General in his attempt, officially, to commit the party to a policy utterly at variance with its every principle, its past purposes, and its present aims.

The party has been built upon the broad foundations of protecting private enterprise, of dispensing equity and justice, and of insuring prosperity alike to the people and the government; and while it has been in the control of statesmen of clear understanding and broad comprehension its success has been fully attained.

It has been the custom, and quite the practice, upon the accession of any one fresh from the fields of finance, or of a limited career in the legal profession, or from haberdashery as a pursuit, for the professional lobbyists to seize upon him and thoroughly inflate him with their assurances of his comprehensive statesmanship; this accomplished he soon becomes larger than his party and a weak prey to their schemes.

It would be idle to attempt to conceal the apparent fact that Mr. Wanamaker, in the new vocation of a Postmaster General directing the legislation of Congress, has entirely lost his head and forgotten his place, and painfully manifests that he is "most ignorant of what he is most assured." His personal assumptions might pass with him, on his retirement from office, into oblivion, and we might now pass them by were it not that our pride and faith of party is greatly wounded with the exhibition he makes while prompted by a lobby of designing scamps, to schemes that have neither the demand of the people, the sanction of the party, nor the commendation of the President for their justification.

The Secretary of the Treasury, by requiremenis of the constitution, reports direct to congress, and is not infrequently asked by that body for information touching proposed legislation; other cabinet ministers report to the President by law, and only through him by precedent and practice have communication with congress.

That a great political party should be held responsible for the vagaries of a cabinet minister is quite deplorable, but when these affect in their purpose the material interests of large classes of the people, his attitude visits the party as a calamity by insuring its defeat in great states precariously Republican.

The Local Tax Question.

Pennsylvania is rarely or never without a revenue commission charged with the responsibility of overhanging the State tax laws, but it has never derived any important benefits from this source. With past experience to guide it, the present commission ought to see its way clear to avoid many mistakes, and prove itself really useful. But in three days' session in this city has not given much encouragement. It is not likely to make great headway while listening to theorists and people with special ideas.

The present commission is given rather wider authority than was possessed by former bodies of like character. It is authorized to revive the local as well as the State tax laws. This offers a field of great importance and usefulness. As the Legislature has not been accustomed to take up and pass the acts prepared by commissions, and as there is no reason to expect the next Legislature to be of a wholly different disposition, it would hardly seem necessary for the commision to go to the trouble of preparing a bill to be ultimately ignored, unless it can be sustained by information and facts of indisputable force.

The people are too much burdened, in some instances positively oppressed, by local taxation. What the commission needs most to do is to keep this fact before it; to get a knowledge of the extent and character of local taxation, now so little understood, and apply itself to some method by which relief can be had. The weight falling upon real estate which is not taxed for State purposes is the cause of the very general and, in most respects, the just complaints that are heard. To provide a sure and proper means for the relief of this burden is the best work that the commission can undertake.

The State does not need any more revenue to meet expenditures under its present policy, but the State may very properly, and should assume, additional responsibilities for the relief of the several localities. It should undertake all the current expenses for public education, for making State roads and bridges, and the full care of the indigent insane. In these three items alone a relief could be extended to local taxation which could be instantly and beneficiall felt. It would enable a material reduction to be made in the assessments upon real estate. As there is no State burden, excepting upon money at interest, the State can only afford relief by taking some of the burdens from the shoulders of the township, borough and county governments.

This is a big enough question for the commission. If it should not prepare any elaborate revision of the tax laws, and should not present to the next Legislature a bill for it to set aside, the commission can do an important work by getting a thorough and accurate knowledge of the systems of local taxations throughout the State, and the burdens imposed. It is only upon full facts that any adequate measure can be prepared, and comprehensive facts have been lacking hitherto. This commission should not supply them. If it does that it will do well, and the Legislature will have a light to go by.—Philadelphia Press.

Here It Is.

"Heroes of The Dark Continent," is the only genuine and authentic work on Stanley's late Exploration published in America. Mr. Zeigler is the commissioned agent for Bellefonte, and persons desiring to obtain it can be assured of its accurateness and authenticity by reading what Mr. Kelley the publisher has to say to the agent. While canvassing for "Heroes of the Dark Continent," you will find many persons who will question you about the completeness of the book. In reply you can assure them most positively that your book is just what is claimed for it. Mr. Stanley was sent out to the relief of Emin Pasha by a committee of which Sir Wm. MacKinnon, President of the East Africa Co. was made chairman; to whom Mr. Stanley sent his letters from different stations on the route. These letters and dispatches embraced incidents from the time of his departure until his return to Zanzibar in December. Hence the work will supply in complete and permanent from an authentic and popular history of Mr. Stanley's achievement. The book itself is its best witness.

"I attribute much of our defeat," said Mayor Grant, "to the action of the Democratic Congressmen from the States nearer Chicago than to New York in voting solidly for Chicago. It was in those Western States a matter of loyalty to the State and to the constituents of the Congressmen to vote for the Windy City. These States were Michigan, Wisconsin, Indiana, Minnesota and Iowa."

THE HATFIELDS have added another to their long list. Here is a way for the Government and the Kentucky and West Virginia authorities to kill two dangerous birds with one stone: Plant the Apache Indians in the neighborhood of the Hatfields and McCoys and let nature caper.

WM. WALDORF ASTOR can now sign his check for about $200,000,000, which is likely more than any other man living can do, and a remarkable feature of the fortune is that it has been accumulated in about three-quarters of a century by steady, legitimate methods of trade.

CHICAGO says it took less time to rebuild the entire city after the last fire, than is now allowed for the preparation for the World's Fair, therefore there will be time enough and to spare. Had New York got the Fair it would have been eternally saying there isn't time enough.

NEW YORK did not get the World's Fair by a (Croton) dam site.

James Bortz, residing near Macungie, Pa., one day last week took a pair of boots to a cobbler for slight repairs. He said he had owned them for 19 years, but had used them only on Sundays and on special occasions.

The cold has been so intense at Burchrest that whole packs of starving wolves have invaded the towns and villages. In Bessarabia, a mail cart was attacked and the postman, with his horses, was eaten up by the ravenous brutes.

What March Will Be Like.

By Rev. Irl R Hicks:

Cool to cold, fair weather, for the most part, will prevail at the opening of March. The near approach of the earth to its vernal equinox is liable to produce terrestial storms at any time but the regular periodic storm movements will be clearly perceptible. The first regular period will be central on the 4th, with danger days, especially for the Eastern parts of the country, about the 4th, 5th, 6th. Perhaps a day or two earlier toward the West. Heavy precipitation, changing from rain or snow, going from south to north, may be looked for, winding up with a cold wave, which will be left far southward. The reactionary changes will fall on and about the 10th and 11th, which time is about the crisis of the vernal equinoctial period, and will be intensified this time by the approaching equinox of Venus. Surprising changes of temperature will take place. The mercury will dip toward zero at one place and rise toward the 90s at another not more than a degree or two away perhaps, and at the same moment of time. Violent electrical and atmospheric conflicts and convulsions must result. Seafaring interests in danger.

From the 14th to 18th, taking the 15th, 16th, 17th and 18th as days of greatest probable danger, is the next regular storm period. The presence of the new moon on the 20th, earth's equinox on the 22d, and Venus's equinox on the 26th, are almost certain to prolong the disturbance of this period into the reactionary movements on the 21st and 22d. This period, taking it altogether, will either be marked by many violent and destructive storms on land and sea, or by excessively high and prolonged temperature, followed by active earthquake phenomena. Either or both need not unduly surprise or alarm. Be watchful and prudent, put your trust in God and be at rest.

All the above may apply with equal force to the last storm period for the month, which is central on the 27th. If storm clouds appear about the 26th to 29th—which they are very sure to do—watch them closely until the character of the storms they convey are fully developed. Storms changing from snow to sleet, and from sleet to heavy rains, hail and cyclones are possible and probable. Mercury is on the 29th, Vulcan on the 27th, and Venus on the 26th, with earth and Jupiter as backers. Let us see what the results will be. The month ought to end as it begun—cool and cold.

March will be a hard month on your stock. Make special efforts to protect and nourish it. It will pay you and meet the conditians of a "merciful man."

A Vote of Thanks.

At the last regular meeting of Gregg Post, No. 95, G. A. R., held Monday evennig, March 3d, a vote of thanks was unanimously extended to the Ladies of the Relief Corps of the post for the work performed and the interest they took in the annual entertainment and restaurant held on February 22d, to raise money for the relief fund of the post.

Also to the citizens of Bellefonte and vicinity for their very liberal contributions and patronage to the restaurant.

At the same time a special vote of thanks was extended to Mrs. Sarah Young and Miss Anna Green for two very handsome table covers presented to the post, suitably worked by hand, with the different emblems of the G. A. R.

At Bush Grove School.

Prof. D. M. Wolf, county superintendent of public schools, accompanied by Mr. W. R. Potter, of Elk county, visited the Bush Grove school on Monday, probably for the last time, as this is his last year as superintendent. The teacher and scholars were all glad to see their superintendent who, while there, made one of his characteristic and practical good talks. Miss Dora White is the teacher of this school and the many bright faces are evidence of her ability as an instructress.

$50 For a Guess

THE BOYS' HOLIDAY offers three prizes in gold, of $50, $25 and $10 respectively, for the best three guesses on a simple question. It doesn't cost anything to make the guess, and boys and girls, men and women, young and old alike stand an equal chance of winning. The particulars are given in No. 11 of THE BOYS' HOLIDAY, for sale everywhere, or sent for 5 cents by the Publisher, 19 Beekman St., N. Y.

It is said that four years after the fight at Chickamauga the battlefield shone like bright moonlight, even on the darkest nights. The light came from the phosphorescent exhalation of the decaying bones of the heaped up dead.

A curious character in Paris is a man who makes his living by strolling along the boulevards, and making wages with men at the cafes that he can answer correctly any question that relates to the history of France. He always wins the bet, it is said.

The United States Fish Commission awarded the contract for the erection of the steam and water distributing plants at Put-in-Bay, O., to Messrs. Shaw, Kendall & Co., of Toledo, O. It is expected that the station will be in complete running order in time for the next whitefish season, in November.

Our Story Teller.

LOST IN A MINE.

San Francisco Examiner

They were talking about the recent mining disaster at San Leandro that brought the conversation around to mining accidents generally, and finally one of the party recalled the Comstock horror of two years ago, when a cave in the Gould and Curry buried nine men alive.

'I had a pretty ugly experience in the mines myself eight years ago,' said one of the party, an ex-Nevadan.

'I was a boy of 14 or 15 then, with about as little sense of prudence as most boys of that age, and I had a chum about as old who was as careless as myself.

'We lived toward the north end of Virginia City, and had a big back yard in which we always planned our expeditions. One day, in poking around the big yard, we found near an old shed a big iron ring. This was fastened to a heavy plank cover that hid the mouth of an old shaft. This cover was hid by a couple of inches of dirt.

'When the first big excitement struck the Comstock everybody went to digging, and now the whole side of Mount Davidson is as full of abandoned shafts as a Swiss cheese is of holes. Within the town limits all the abandoned shafts are filled up or covered so as to keep belated pedestrians out of them. The mine we discovered in the corner of the yard had been too extensively worked to allow of it being filled up, and therefore had been covered as described.

'We didn't lose much time in prying up that cover and beginning the exploration of what we found. The shaft was evidently an upraise from some drift of the lower mines, for it went down at an angle of about forty-five. As soon as we had descended fifty feet we saw that the workings had been very extensive, indeed, for the drifts and windes went off from the main shaft in every direction. We went into several of these, but always found ourselves stopped by a cave, for the workings were very old.

"Some shovels and picks that we discovered were almost gone with rust, and the timbers where they stood were bent and crushed and rotten. By guarded inquiries we found that it was in the ground of the Ophir Mining Company, and a drift had been extended to this place in an attempt to strike a ledge to the west. We knew the old workings must connect with it somewhere, for the air was good and there was a steady up draught.

"Finally the idea took posession of us to go from our mine into some of the working ones, and come up that way.

"The Andes shaft was only a few hundred yards from our mine, and we knew they must be connected. We knew enough about the mines to take what we thought were sufficient precautions against getting lost. The grain of the rocks showed us the directions as surely as a compass, so we were not at all apprehensive.

"We thought that we might be down for several hours, however, and so took along a number of extra candles and some lunch. Thus fixed, we began to clamber down the old shaft. A hundred feet below the surface we found some more drifts, and spent an hour or so in them, but all were either blockaded with caves or else stopped in the solid porphyry. So we had to go on clambering down the incline.

"Ben was ahead, and I saw him stop, and then he shouted back to me:

"This is the bottom."

"He stood clear of the walls and lifted up his candle to examine the place.

" 'This is the bottom,' he repeated.

" 'Are you sure?' I called back.

" 'Yes; I——'

"I saw his candle disappear amid a crash. He called to me that it was all right, and I cautiously followed, though I could not see his light anywhere. Soon I found out what was the matter.

"The miners had built a platform across the shaft, probably to prevent things from rolling down, and my companion's weight had broken through the planks that had been placed in position so long before. He had only slid a few yards down the incline, and, barring a few scratches, was unhurt. A very little way below the old platform we struck the 200 foot level of the mine, and started off to explore the tunnels. After following a crooked old tunnel we came to a point where it forked.

"We entered the left hand tunnel and found that it extended less than twenty yards. When we came to a standstill against the wall of rock Ben put his candle close to the wall to observe the grain of the porphyry. He made an exclamation of surprise. By the grain of the rock we had been traveling almost north, when we thought we were making good progress to the south. When or how we had got turned around we could not tell, but there was no possibility of doubt about it.

"We lost no time in retracing our steps, but to our surprise, when we came to the crooked tunnel again, we saw the mouths of three drifts instead of two. We took the tunnel that led to the right and were gratified to find that it turned to the south after a few yards. It ended in an incline something like the one by which we had entered the mine. Down this went Ben, while I waited above, so as to be able to direct him back with my voice. Soon I heard him calling to me, and I followed.

"Look here," said Ben, putting his candle close to a clammy timber.

"I looked and saw a chalk mark.

"We've gone round in a circle somehow," said Ben. "There is the wheelbarrow you fell over. We had better follow our marks back and try it again some other time.

"I was willing, and we walked back occasionally stopping to see the marks on the timbers.

"I didn't notice these things before, did you?" said my campanion, as we passed half a dozen rusty picks that must have been lying there a decade, at least.

"I hadn't noticed them, either, and soon we bumped our heads against an old lantern hanging from the top of the drift. We hadn't met that before. Then we saw more unfamiliar things, and we noticed that there was water beside the old car track, while the drifts by which we had come were all dry as a bone.

"We looked at one another and evidently the same thought passed through both our minds, but we kept on, and soon our fears were realized: The tunnel ended in what had been years before a cooling station—a place where the miners ate their lunch and rested and cooled off when they were in the neighboring drift. We had followed some one else's chalk marks, and we now had no idea of our whereabouts.

"We can't get out the way we came,' said Ben, 'and no work is being done in the upper levels, so what we've got to do is to get down as far as we can, and we're bound to run across some miners; then we began trying to find ourselves. We took the nearest tunnel and followed it until we came to a shaft with ladders in it. These ladders were crumbling and had evidently not been used for years, but we were not heavy and they did not break. Down we climbed to another level. This we followed as before.

'Whenever we came to a new shaft we threw a fragment of rock down to ascertain how deep it was. Then we would climb down as far as we could. We had just reached one level when a rushing sound broke the stillness. The noise startled us for an instant, but hurrying ahead we saw hundreds of rats coming out of a small tunnel, at the mouth of which stood a mouldering old ore car.

'This cheered us, for we decided that men must frequent some place near there, or the rats, which in mines live on the remains of the miners' lunches, could get nothing to eat. But, though we hunted until we had to stop and cry again, we could find no one. Down an incline we went and struck a tunnel that had evidently been used more lately than the others. As we turned into it we saw a spark away off. Soon we saw that it was a candle carried by a miner. We let out a shout, but to our amazement and horror the miner dropped his candle and ran as though forty devils were chasing them.

"We hurried after him and picked up his candle, but he must have turned into some other drift for we could not find him, and our weary search soon became as hopeless as before. We had by this time been in the mines a good many hours and had cried ourselves sick. No matter which way we turned there were the same dead cold walls of rock. The passages were endless, they seemed to lead nowhere. We passed several old cooling stations, and at last we got to one and stopped. We were utterly exhausted, and with all our misery choking us we swallowed some of our lunch, blew out our candles and, holding each other's hands, fell asleep.

'I remember that my last thought before I became unconscious was that a long time afterward they would find our bodies, and I think I even composed my face and arranged my limbs so as to make a more effective corpse. Nothing about this struck me as being funny. Indeed, I fell asleep crying. We must have slept a good many hours and my next recollection is of our lying there together, sobbing in the dense darkness. Suddenly I became conscious of a low, continued roar as of water running a long way off.

'My companion heard it and we listened, dully wondering what it could be. We finally lit a candle, ate the last of our lunch and started to find out. We had both been down the mine frequently before and had no fear of the darkness or the rats, so we went without hesitation. It was not hard to follow the noise. A long tunnel, down short upraises and up inclines we went until we struck our corridor. We followed on toward the noise. It was louder here, and as we advanced it grew into a perfect roar that filled the tunnel.

'Soon we ran into a wall of wood, from behind which the noise came. We peered through a chink in the plank partition and saw a broad moving line. It was the cable that hoists the cage, and that is what made the noise. We watched through the chink in the boards until we saw a cage loaded with rocks go up, and then began to think how we could reach the point from which the cage had started. We knew that we were very far under ground, for the rocks that we threw down the frequent shafts splashed in the water at the bottom.

"It was not long before we found a deep shaft, and down that we clambered. As we neared the bottom we heard another rumbling—an ore car running along the tramway. We shouted as we went down the ladders and the carman answered our cry. Soon we were standing by him, while he looked us over with wonder.

"Where are we?' we both shouted, as soon as we could speak.

"This is the 1,500 foot level of the Crown Point,' he answered.

"We had gone a mile and a half under the ground and nearly a third of a mile down. We were sick and bruised and hungry, and our clothes were torn almost off of us. It was 10 o'clock in the morning when we entered the old incline, and it was nearly 4 o'clock the next morning when the carman found us. In no time at all we had been fed and sent in charge of a miner on the cage to daylight again."

A Token of Esteem.

As the train stopped at a station about thirty miles west of Indianapolis we noticed an unusually large crowd on the depot platform, and it was evident that speech making had been indulged in and that somebody of note was taking a departure. We soon discovered that this person was a certain Col. Blank, who came into the car with a package under his arm, and whose cheeks were wet with farewell tears. He called "good-bye!" a score of times from the window, and as the train finally rolled off he blew his nose, wiped his eyes and turned to us with:

"Gentlemen, it touches the heart-strings to part with old friends and neighbors."

"You are saying farewell, then?"

"Yes. I am going up to Indianapolis to reside. The field here is too limited, as I have discovered after ten years' residence."

"Well, it is certainly pleasant to part from friends the way you have."

"Indeed, it is! Over two hundred of the best people in town came down to see me off, and the President of the bank made a beautiful speech wished me every success, and all that, and then handed me this as a token of respect and esteem."

"Ah! Made you a present, eh? Evidently something nice?"

"Bound to be," replied the colonel, as he took the package from the seat.

"Perhaps you don't want to reveal the contents?"

"Oh, I have no objections. We'll undo it and see what they have given me."

He carefully untied the string and removed the several papers which wrapped the precious memento, and lo! there was exposed to our gaze a—sponge! Yes, sir; a great big bath sponge, which never cost less than a dollar! We pressed forward to see it, and the Colonel turned red and white by turns, bit his lips, and bobbed about on the seat, and as we held our breaths he burst out with:

"Gentlemen, heartstrings be blowed! The onery, thieving, loafing, lying crowd have gone and heaped a deadly insult upon me, and the next two hundred and fifty years of my life shall be devoted to wading in human blood clear up to the top vest-button!"—Exchange.

Memory Rings.

Jewelers' Weekly.

"Is my memory ring done?" queried a bright-looking young lady in a downtown jewelry store lately. It was and she triumphantly carried it away. "That's the latest novelty in jewelry among the girls," remarked the clerk, turning to a reporter, who was wondering what a memory ring could be.

"A memory ring is merely a ten cent piece rimmed out, with the milled edge left untouched. Usually the ring has a bangle attached, made of the inner part of the dime and bearing the monogram of the youth who has been inveigled into giving the girl the coin The ring when finished costs less than $1. Sometimes it is made double, the two dimes being cemented together,

"Another novelty is the friendship ring. A girl goes among the young men of her acquaintance and gets from each a little sum of money, varying from a cent to a dime, and when she has laid tribute on all her friends she buys a ring such as the proceeds of her work will purchase. Memory rings seem to be the favorite."

—Business was brisk in the halls of justice on Friday. There was the Weaver hearing, the Veighdorfer hearing, the Houser hearing and a whole army of on-lookers hearing.

ONE OF HIS OFF DYAS.

The Millionaire Not Anxious for Gas When His Spree was Edned.

San Francisco Chronicle.

Money was no object to him. He had plenty. He owned a beautiful place on the other side of the bay. He had a vineyard, an orchard, stables and all sorts of luxuries. One day a few weeks ago he got upon a little spree, as millionaires will, and it dawned upon him when he was about at his liveliest that he wanted to pnt gas on his place. He went up to the plumber's.

"I want gas," he said, "gas. Send a man over to meet me at my place tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock and I'll show him what I want."

He kept up his little spree, so that when the plumber's man met him next morning he was still lively.

"Yes," he said, "I want gas. Gas here all over this garden, and I want the finest gasaliers you've got put up in this stable, and then I want you to lay pipes all over this vineyard, and put up lamp posts, because sometimes I want to come down here in the middle of the night and see the vines grow. Gas—Gas—"

The plumber looked around and measured things.

"That will take 16,000 feet of pipe," he said.

"Don't care; 16,000,000 feet, gas; I want gas everywhere."

"All right," and the gasman measured all over and went away. "I'll be down Tuesday," he said.

Tuesday came; the millionaire was lounging through his orchard when a man appeared before him.

"Good mornin," said the man.

"Good morning," said the millionaire, dubiously.

"I've come to put that gas in for you."

"Oh, yes—of course—gas," said the millionaire, but he showed very clearly he did not quite understand. However, he did not wish to give himself away. He looked up the road and saw a team coming down.

'What's that team?' he asked.

'That's 6,000 feet of the pipe. There will be 10,000 feet more this afternoon.'

'That will be all right.'

The millionaire took his hat off and mopped his brow.

'Say, come into the house and take a drink.'

They walked into the house. The millionaire took the man into the dining room, closed all the doors, shut all the windows, and when he had filled a glass of whisky, he said,

'Say, what is all this gas business, anyway?'

"Why, don't you remember you ordered gas to be put in the stable and the orchard and all over the grounds—16,000 feet of pipe?'

'Great Scott! When did I order all this?'

Saturday morning.'

Saturday! Say, old man, rats! Don't say any more about it. Saturday was an off day with me. All I want is a couple of gas jets in the stable. Send that——pipe, and I'll make it worth your while not to say anything.'

Buttons That Will Stick.

Chicago Times.

"When I get a bright idea I always want to pass it along," a lady said as she sat watching a young girl sewing: 'do your buttons ever come off, Lena?' 'Ever?' they're always doing it. They are ironed off, washed off, and pulled off, until I despair. I seem to shed buttons at every step.' 'Make use of these two hints when you are sewing them on, then, and see if they make any difference. When you begin, before you lay the button on the cloth put the thread through so that the knot will be on the right side. That leaves it under the button, and prevents it from being ironed or worn away, and thus beginning the loosening process.

"Then before you begin sewing, lay a large pin across the button so that all your threads will go over the pin. After you have finished filling the holes with thread draw out the pin and wind your thread round and round beneath the button. That makes a compact stem to sustain the possible pulling and wear of the buttonhole. It is no exaggeration to say that my buttons never came off, and I'm sure yours wont if you use my method of sewing."

Great Improvement.

Arkansaw Traveler.

Captain Jasman, who owed a bill in a neighboring town, was drawn on through the bank.

"What's this?" he asked of the collector.

It's a draft for $50.'

'The first one I ever saw. Now, they get 'em up in good shape, don't they? Well, sir, there has been a big improvement in such things since I could first remember. When I was a boy circus bills were mere daubs of red ink, but now look at 'em.'

'Are you going to pay this draft?'

'Oh, I don't want it. Tell that feller that I am much obliged for the kind attention he has shown me, but that I cannot afford to pay so large a price for such a small piece of paper. Good day.'

TAUGHT A LESSON.

A Story of a Prankish Chicago Man and a Daring Windy City Girl.

Chicago Mail.

"Now and then a man gets the conceit taken out of him in fine fashion," said a friend yesterday. "I was just thinking of one experience of a West Side family man recently. He had been connected with one of the local theaters in a managerial position, but just now he is out of it. I don't know what he is doing, but I know he has a wife and babies, and that's what gives point to the incident. I suppose there's something in the theatrical atmosphere that effects men, for everybody who dips into the profession seems to develop a prankishness and a hankering for escapades with pretty women, no matter what they may have been before that. The gentleman I speak of was no exception, and when he spied a couple of pretty girls walking on the boulevard as he drove along in his buggy, a few weeks ago, he obeyed his first impulse to engage in a flirtation. It was pretty well out beyond Western avenue, and the gay pranker pretended to be ignorant of the names of cross streets, and made this an excuse for speaking to the girls.

"They evidently thought it a right jolly lark, and answered him in such friendly fashion that he chatted with them for a few minutes, when he asked one of them—the prettiest, you may be sure—if she didn't want to take a short ride with him while he showed her his horse's paces. The girls laughed at this, but finally the invitation was accepted, and the family man and the pretty girl sped westward, while the other girl sauntered home. Of course it was a daring thing for the girl to do, for she was of the utmost respectability, but she was a particularly self reliant girl, with a great store of confidence in her ability to take care of herself, and she liked the excitement of it.

"As they drove along toward Garfield park the family man, who thought he had made a great impression on the girl, became very affectionate, and went about as far as he could in the way of passionate love making. He urged her to 'fly with him,' and all this sort of thing, ringing in all the extravagancies of the lovers in plays that he could remember; but the girl didn't seem to respond very soulfully. She laughed at him good naturedly, and when he attempted to put his arm around her and kiss her she brought him up standing, as it were.

"When they reached the park she told him she wanted a drink of the mineral water, and he left the buggy to procure it for her. As soon as he had gone to the well the girl seized the lines, gave the horse a cut with the whip and clattered away, leaving the family man standing dumbfounded by the well with the tin cup in his hand. There was nothing for him to do. Several people standing by noticed the trick and made some comment, but he recognized the fact that he must accept the situation gracefully if he didn't want to make it worse, so he laughed and said it was one of his wife's jokes and walked to a street car.

"The girl drove away to the east, and the last the pranker saw of his rig his horse was getting down to beautiful work and a white handkerchief was waving from the side in the hand of the fair friend. I don't know what tale the man told his wife in explanation of the absence of his horse and buggy, but I suppose it was one of the gauzy romances which satisfy the curiosity of dutiful wives. Any way a week passed and he hadn't seen or heard from his missing rig and the more he thought it over the more knotty the problem appeared. He didn't know the girl and the girl didn't know him. He couldn't go to her and ask for his property because he couldn't find her, and she couldn't return it because she couldn't find him.

"After two weeks of uneasiness the family man wrote an advertisement and printed it in the papers. It had to be couched in the subtlest terms, because it had to convey the proper meaning to the girl who ran away with the buggy and yet not expose the truth of the matter to the family man's wife. A ream or two of paper was used up, but the advertisement was finally completed, and after spending something over $10 in getting it printed several days in the papers, the horse and buggy were returned to their owner by a man servant. The young lady in the case belongs to a prominent West Side family. You may rest assured the ex-theatrical man will be a better husband in the future as long as he has his horse and buggy with him."

'I have only one last request to make,' said the dying man, as he painfully raised his head from the pillow and surveyed the weeping group around his bedside.

'What is it, my good friend?' asked the clergyman. 'Anything you ask will be done.'

'Then see that the newspapers don't refer to me as 'another old landmark gone.'

Clara Price Monument Fund.

The following letter has been sent to the Clearfield papers:

MR. EDITOR: We have undertaken to raise money to erect a monument over the grave of Clara Price (the young girl murdered by Alfred Andrews) to commemorate her heroic defense of her virtue. We still lack sufficient funds to carry out this project properly. Should the good people of Clearfield not contribute something to this worthy cause? Judge Furst said, before sentencing Andrews: "Alone and unprotected in a lonely place, you made your assault upon her. She sacrificed her young life to save her virtue. Her noble effort to protect her honor and purity ought to be written in granite above her grave." She died, not because she had to, but because she chose to. Had she yielded to his hellish purpose she might yet live. But hard as her fate was, Clara chose the better part. No nobler act can be commemorated by us than the heroic martyrdom of this young girl for her honor. A dollar given for this purpose will be to a holy and just cause and one that we can never regret. While human and Divine justice has swiftly overtaken this wicked wretch, who now only awaits the execution of the law, let us finish this bloody drama by erecting a suitable monument to her honor. Will not some one take a little time going around and collect what they can and transmitting it to any one of the following committee: E I Gilliland, Pottersdale, Pa., or J A Heckenborn or Wm. B Potter, Karthaus, Pa., who will duly acknowledge the same.

KARTHAUS, PA., Feb. 22, 1890.

Is Centre county doing anything towards this noble recognition of the girl who died for her honor?

When Baby was sick, we gave her Castoria.
When she was a Child, she cried for Castoria.
When she became Miss, she clung to Castoria.
When she had Children, she gave them Castoria.

MANAGING DARK HAIR.

It is Not to be Banged, but Parted and Brushed Back.

New York Sun.

If you have dark hair, do not let anybody persuade you into wearing it in a full heavy bang; leave that to the blonde who according to statistics, do not marry. Instead, if you possibly can, have your hair parted and brushed back with just one or two soft locks curled a little. Frizzy black hair is as bad form as that which gains its sunshine from peroxide of hydrogen. You want your black hair to shine like your diamonds. In your heart of hearts you ought to be satisfied with it, for fickle Monsieur Worth says that nothing delights his soul so much as to make a gown for a dark haired woman. There is no earthly use in a blonde trying to turn her locks to auburn. This color is only produced by using the peroxide on dark hair, and even then great care has to be taken that too much is not used, else it will be lighter than the Titian red desired.

—In the Centre county portion of the Auditor General's statement there exists several discrepancies, not made by the paper but by the department in Harrisburg. For instance; The personal tax credited to Centre county was $5,000, whereas we were informed by the treasurer that Centre county paid $5,156,10 personal tax. Another was a discrepancy of about $500 in the account of John A. Rupp, register.

and 7 o'clock and wanted to fight him and said that Sam. Parsons swore to that and intimated that 25 cents worth of whiskey would do a good deal with such a witness. Here the Court interrupted him and told him he must answer questions and stop making outside remarks. After this the prisoner acted a little more reasonable, and his testimony was closely followed by cross-examination, and where Sweezy was with the knife and Bill Lovett with billy was just after witness passed the white horse and Jack followed him, and when he turned away from the two Jack was right behind him—above the shed—and he struck Jack and then turned again and Bill struck at him and he struck back at Bill.

Witness was asked if he knew Charley Lindsay. He said he did. At this defense requested the offer be put in writing. Objection overruled. Did not tell Lindsay last fall that he would "fix those damn Lovetts before year is up." Know Jacob Englert. Did not say in his hearing that he would let George know in morning who drew the little end of the horn. Did not tell Charles Hagar that "if he got the chance at Bill Lovett that Alex. Martin had he would be a dead man." Did not tell Rufus Merrill or any one else that if he got at Wm. Lovett he would "lay him out cold." Did not tell Bill Probst that he would "have revenge on Bill Lovett if he had to do it foul." Did not tell George Patterson that if he "got in a fight with Lovett he could kill him in a minute." Did not say in Callahan's that if he got at Bill Lovett he would "fix him so that he would not fight again." Did not tell John Sweezy that there was "more than one way to get away with a man and that he owed Lovett a grudge and if Lovett and he ever came together he would lay him out too cold to skin." Did not say in presence of Emily and Robert Patterson that if Bill Lovett ever crossed his path "he would kill him," and did not say he would kill him before spring in presence of Robert Patterson,

A half dozen or more witnesses were called and several testified to having heard Lovett make threats against Brown and to his being a very quarrelsome man, especially when under the influence of liquor.

The evidence for the defense closed about the middle of the forenoon and the Commonwealth called quite a number of witnesses in rebuttal. All the evidence was closed at noon and the witnesses discharged.

At the opening of the afternoon session of court District Attorney Brungard opened the argument for the Commonwealth occupying about one hour and a half in summing up. He was followed by H T Harvey, who summed up for the defense and C S McCormick who made the final plea for the prisoner. T F Abrams made the final plea for the Commonwealth. All were equally brilliant in their speeches to the jury.

Is Consumption Incurable?

Read the following: Mr. C. H. Morris, Newark, Ark., says: "Was down with Abcess of Lungs, and friends and physicians pronounced me an Incurable Consumptive. Began taking Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, am now on my third bottle, and able to oversee the work on my farm. It is the finest medicine ever made."

Jesse Middlewart, Decator, Ohio, says "Had it not been for Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption I would have died of Lung Troubles. Was given up by doctors. Am now in best of health." Try it. Sample bottles free at W. C. Keplinger & Co's drug store.

A LADY'S PERFECT COMPANION.

PAINLESS CHILDBIRTH, a new book by Dr. John H. Dye, one of New York's most skillful physicians, shows that pain is not necessary in Childberth, but results from causes easily understood and overcome. It clearly proves that any woman may become a mother without suffering any pain whatever. It also tells how to overcome and prevent morning sickness' swelled limbs, and all other evils attending pregnancy. It is reliable and highly endorsed by physicians everywhere as the wife's true private companion. Cut this out: it will save you great pain, and possibly your life. TO ADVERTISERS!

HOW TO GET THE MOST SERVICE FOR THE MONEY!

The Advertiser who would be willing to pay twenty-five cents for every family who could be "educated" up to the value of his goods would thus devote $3,000,000 to educate the 12,000,000 families which make up the 60,000,000 of the United States. This sum would do the business thoroughly in a year, for it is sufficient to pay for the insertion of a full column in every issue of every publication, and for resetting the matter, making it new in every issue of each separate publication. We will receive and execute the contract.

$5,000 One of the most successful Advertisers we ever had always ordered his advertisements in this way, "Get the best service you can for me for $5,000," leaving every detail to us. We were thus enabled to say to a Publisher, if you put this in at a large reduction from your rate it will be no criterion for further transactions. It was a surprise to find ourselves so often able to contract for the insertion of that particular advertisement at half rates, in papers which would not permit us to OFFER their columns at a penny's deviation from a printed schedule. The advertising rates of one New York paper are double those of another which has twice the circulation of the first. Similar discrepancies are not uncommon. The advertisement intrusted to us to be placed in accordance with our judgment often does double service for half the money. A dollar for twenty-five cents.

$1,000 If we are given authority to insert advertisements to a limited amount, in such mediums as ofier inducements which seem to us specially favorable, we shall not abuse the confidence reposed in us, and shall render statements of whatever is done (if anything) from day to day. When TRUSTED with the placing of an advertisement, we are put upon honor, and are bound in honor to give the best service possible for the money to be used.

$500 Leading Newspapers, especially the leading Agricultural Nswspapers, frequently issue large special editions (of twenty, fifty, a hundred, or even five hundred thousand copies,) and eslicit advertisement orders from us on terms which would often be accepted by our patrons if there was time to invite attention to the matter; but the question must generally be decided before there would be time to write and receive a reply, and often the caso cannot be fully stated within the limits of a letter.

$250 Prepare a small advertisement and send with check for $250, or any other sum. The practice of asking the Agent to name his papers in advance compels him to name such as are well known, otherwise there is reason to suspect that his judgment is biased;—and the best papers do not like to have their rates quoted below their schedule.

$100 The advertiser who sends his advertisements asking for the best service possible for one hundred dollars, will often get from five to fifty per cent more service for his money, than he would had he required us to tell him in advance exactly what service we would promise; for when an estimate has been given its plan and specifications must, in a general way at least, control the advertising to be done: It ties the Agent's hands and prevents his giving his patrons TO-DAY a better service than he could have promised yesterday, because yesterday the opportunity had not presented itself: to-morrow it may have passed! Some publications are used more economically on contracts for a single issue; in others insertion for a month may be had as cheaply as for a single week but in furnishing an estimate in advance, if the Agent attempts to go into details, his correspondence becomes voluminous and the advertiser confused.

$50. If you are in the habit of occasionally inserting a small advertisement in a few papers, investing a few dollars and carefully noting the result; we desire you to make trial of our Advertising Bureau, sending us the advertisement and the money, leaving the selection of the papers to us, and judging of the service rendered by results rather than by names, circulation claims or prices. To make up careful estimates calls for much work. It don't pay to make them indiscriminately for every applicant. If such estimates as are asked for were always given the Advertiser who wished to expend $50 would frequently find himself in possession of a scheme which it would cost $500 or possibly $5,000 to carry out.

$10. We devote all necessary care to placing small orders for Advertising:—even the smallest! Time is saved by sending check with the order. Often the Advertiser is not possessed of sufficient information on the subject to enable him to judge of the merits of an estimate for advertising, and he decides by the footings of the figures whether he will or will not do the work. Yet the estimate binds the Agent and makes it improper for him to make any variation in its specifications, however much his judgment may point to material changes which ought to be made. This is specially liable to be the case when the order comes a considerable time after the estimate was made.

ENTOMBED IN A MINE.

Eight Unfortunates Imprisoned in a Burning Coal Tunnel.

A SLIGHT GLEAM OF HOPE.

A Rescuing Party Reports the Air in an Adjoining Shaft Excellent, and the Men May Be Safe in One of Its Chambers—Work of Rescue.

WILKESBARRE, March 5.—A fire which started on Monday evening in the rock tunnel of the South Wilkesbarre mine was still burning Tuesday morning. About 5 o'clock a large portion of the roof of the tunnel caved in by reason of the burning away of the props.

The air pumps are being worked to their utmost capacity to ventilate the Stanton mine, which adjoins and is connected with the South Wilkesbarre shaft.

If the men reached the Stanton mine they may be alive, as the air there is good. In order to reach it, however, they had to travel over a mile from the place where they were working, and it is feared that they were overtaken and suffocated by smoke.

An Unfortunate Concern.

Everything possible is being done by the mine officials to rescue the men. One of the city fire engines was put to work early Tuesday morning, and it is now pouring two large streams of water into the burning mine.

The fire will cause a loss of over $100,000. The Lehigh and Wilkesbarre Coal company has been particularly unfortunate of late. Only a month ago seven men lost their lives in the company's mines at Plymouth.

Five of the men entombed are married, and in case they are not recovered alive they will leave five widows and twenty-four children.

The Entombed Men.

A report has just come from the rescuing party in the Stanton mine that the air is excellent, and that the possibility is that the men are safe in one of the chambers.

The names of these eight men are Thomas Williamson, married; Hugh Duggan, miner, married; Thomas Jameson, driver, a boy, aged 17; Michael Ferry, laborer, single; Frank Call, miner, married; Thomas McDonald, driver, a boy, aged 19 years; James O'Donnell, laborer, single, and a man whose name is unknown.

How It Occurred.

The disaster occurred about 6 o'clock last evening. The day gang had just come out and the night gang was going in. A party of seven men was at work driving an airway opening from one of the gangways, about 2,000 feet from the foot of the shaft. They started into their work about half past 5, and about 6 o'clock Thomas Jameson, having got his mules out of the stable, started after them down the gangway to bring out the cars of coal and rock as fast as they should fill them.

When about 400 feet from the foot of the shaft the naked light on his hat fired a small body of gas that had evidently gathered from a feeder or crevice. It could hardly be called an explosion, merely a rush of flame along the roof, but the gangway was dry as a bone, an unusual thing, and the timbers which lined its sides and the roof took fire like tinder, and in a moment almost, fanned by the strong air current, the gangway was in flames.

Shares Their Fate.

Jameson saw at once that there was great danger to the men beyond unless they made their escape immediately. He called for help, and several men came. He told them to take his mules back and notify the boss.

"I am going in to notify the boys," he said. "They've got to get out mighty quick." Without a word he ran through the fast gathering smoke down the dark tunnel. He never came back, but whatever is the fate of the men he tried to save he will share it.

The flames spread with great rapidity, and in a few minutes the gangway was filled with rolling volumes of smoke which, carried by the air current, swept directly on to where the men were at work. If Jameson reached them at all, and they attempted to make their way out, they must have been driven back by the smoke and flame.

A Gleam of Hope.

The only hope for them is that they may have retired into the far end of one of the gangways opening from the one in which the fire is, and in this case, if they can be reached speedily, they may be brought out alive.

The gangway connects with the workings of the Stanton mine, but the distance is over half a mile, and if they attempted to escape that way, they must have been overtaken by the smoke and suffocated.

A gang of men attempted to reach them from the Stanton mine, but were driven back by the smoke without obtaining any trace of them. Directly the extent of the disaster was realized preparations were commenced for relief. The only way in which they can be reached is by extinguishing the flames, and to this end every effort is being put forth, but many delays occurred before work could be commenced in earnest.

Distracted Relatives.

Relief gangs were organized, each to work two hours, and the wail of fire that shut in their unfortunate comrades was attacked with desperation. Great excitement was created all through the city by the news of the disaster. The colliery is located in the southern portion of the city and the men all lived in its immediate vicinity.

Directly the news became known, their distracted relatives and friends flocked to the colliery in terrible anxiety for their fate. As the intelligence spread the crowds increased, and fully 2,000 people were gathered round the colliery eagerly waiting for some word as to how the work of rescue was going on and speculating as to the prospect of reaching the unfortunate men alive.

LECONEY FREE.

Another Crime Unsolved by the Police of New Jersey.

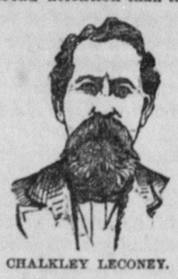
CAMDEN, N. J., March 5.—Public Prosecutor Richard H. Jenkins, who was prostrated by an attack of heart failure during the final stage of his conduct of the Leconey murder trial, was reported dead. This tragic end of a wonderfully dramatic trial created a profound sensation in this city. Later information, however, contradicted the report. He is not dead, though very ill.

Through the city's sunlit streets Tuesday morning a man drove a spanking team of bay mares. Yesterday morning he was in the shadow of the gallows. Men and women stopped on the sidewalks to look at him; some hooted while others cheered him as he drove by.

The subject of all this attention was Chalkley Leconey, the farmer who was Monday afternoon acquitted of the charge of murdering his niece, Annie Leconey, on Sept. 9 last.

He looked neither to the right nor left, and never drew rein until he reached the postoffice, where he stopped to ask for letters. When he entered the building he was at once surrounded by a number of friends, who congratulated him again and again on his narrow escape from the hangman's noose.

No case of late years in New Jersey has excited more widespread attention than the cruel butchery of Miss Annie Leconey, of which crime her uncle, Chalkley, was accused. The resources of the authorities of the state seem to have been exhausted in the search for a solution of the terrible tragedy, with the result that it must go down in criminal history as an unsolved mystery, another foul blot on the fair fame of the state of New Jersey.



CHALKLEY LECONEY.

Annie Leconey was her uncle's housekeeper in the quaint old farm house on the Colestown road near Merchantville, in which generations of Leconeys have been born, lived and died.

A neighbor's daughter, going to borrow a pail of chicken feed on the morning of the 9th of last September, found Annie lying dead just within the kitchen door with a fearful stab wound in her neck. The girl aroused the neighborhood. Chalkley Leconey and his farm laborer, Garrett Murray, were found at work in the field some distance from the scene of the murder. Chalkley was heartbroken at the news.

Frank Lingo, a negro farm hand, was first suspected of the crime, arrested and locked up. Public opinion was against him and public sympathy everywhere was with the uncle, Chalkley Leconey, and while the excitement was at its height he took the body of the murdered girl to her father's home, in Waverly, O., where it was interred. While there suspicion was directed to Leconey. He was arrested at the funeral of his niece in Ohio and brought here for trial, with the result stated above.

The verdict was a surprise even to his friends. They were sanguine that he would not be hanged, but at the best they only hoped for a verdict of manslaughter.

The police will do no more now in the matter. The Leconey case will be ranked along with the murder of Mrs. Kniffin and the inquiry shelved.

THE DOG WAS MAD.

And the People Were Nearly as Bad Before He Was Finished.

PLAINFIELD, N. J., March 5.—A mongrel dog went mad at South Plainfield and caused considerable excitement in the village. The animal first gave evidences of hydrophobia at the Lehigh Valley railroad station, where it terrified women and men alike and was barely prevented from biting a child.

The station agent fired at the dog, but missed, and the animal ran to the residence of Richard Geary, where it bit Mr. Geary's favorite hound. At the home of William Faulks another dog was bitten.

A group of men were engaged in argument at the grocery store of R. B. Manning & Bro., and the debate was just growing very warm when the mad dog suddenly appeared and put everybody to flight.

In the scramble Edward Hughes fell through the cellar hatchway and fractured his leg, while Theodore Lester, with a can of molasses in his hand, climbed to the top of a pile of barrels and threw the can, molasses and all at the dog. Frantic in its sticky envelope, the dog dashed out and ran, yelping, into Brantingham's butcher shop, across the street, where the butcher, after hurling a heavy cleaver at the cur, locked himself into his big ice box.

The dog ran round and round the place, snapping and snarling and foaming at the mouth, till it was finally shot by E. E. Teeple. The dogs known to be bitten have been killed, and Mr. Brantingham has thrown away the meat which hung in reach of the animal as he ran amuck.

A Miraculous Escape.

NEW YORK, March 5.—Ten-year-old Henry Kaplan, who lives at 37 Forsyth street, had a miraculous escape from serious injury. While crossing the Bowery at Division street on his way to school he was knocked down and run over by car 5 of the Second Avenue line. The little fellow, who lay between the tracks, picked himself up after the car had passed over him, but he was again knocked down by a horse and wagon passing at the time. The boy was not hurt in either accident, and, gathering up the scattered books he had carried in his hand, made his way to school.

Kelly and Dixon Win.

NEW YORK, March 5.—Tommy Kelly, bantam champion of the world, defeated Joe Glassy in a rattling fight at Parepa hall. George Dixon, the Boston colored featherweight, easily knocked out young Farrell, of Harlem, in two rounds.

Dead in the Snow.

LAWRENCE, Mass., March 5.—The dead body of little Willie Foster was found in the deep snow on the Haverhill road, in North Andover. The boy had started for school, and his body was found only a short distance from the school house.

His Account Short.

OXFORD, Me., March 5.—A commission appointed by the selectmen to examine the accounts of Town Collector John Chadbourne reports a shortage of $4,000. An action will be begun by the town to recover the money from the bondsmen. Chadbourne is proprietor of a hotel and has been a deputy sheriff for ten years.

United Workmen in Session.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., March 5.—The grand lodge of the Ancient Order of United Workmen began its seventeenth annual session here. There are about 450 members present, and the grand lodge degrees were conferred on 200 new members.

LAWLESSNESS RAMPANT.

Bloody Feuds in Ohio—Six Killed in One Week.

CINCINNATI, March 5.—At Flatlick, Sheriff Calloway Carnes was fatally shot by a desperado named Bill Smith, leader of the Smith faction of the Smith-Slusher feud. The deputy sheriff attempted to arrest one of the Smith party. Their leader objected, and opened fire with a Winchester rifle, one ball passing through the deputy sheriff's body.

Carnes is a brother-in-law of the Messeres, four of the most desperate men in the mountains, who are also members of the Slusher gang. They rallied their forces and started in pursuit of Smith's crowd, but have not yet come up with them. Should they do so, a battle will be the result. Either side numbers over thirty-five well armed men.

During the past year two open battles have been fought, and men have been killed on both sides. This trouble becomes worse day by day, and more bloodshed is imminent. A man living on Poplar Creek, 6 miles south of this place, came to town this morning for a wagon load of coffins and gave an account of a bloody affray that occurred on that creek in which old man Archie Legeer, his son and McKinney, his son-in-law, were killed outright by Joe Turner and two other men from Bell County.

The trouble grew out of dividing some household goods belonging to McKinney and his wife, who had separated. They all congregated at Legeer's house for the purpose of dividing the property between the man and his wife, but could not agree only in one particular, and that was to settle the matter with Winchesters. Three killed and several others wounded was the result.

A man named Stringer and one named Lane were killed at Grays, near here, a few days since, making a total of six killed for the last week in this county.

ALBANY LEGISLATION.

Proceedings in the Senate and in the Assembly.

ALBANY, March 5.—In the senate the following bills were passed:

Mr. Sloan's, increasing to $18,000 the Oswego highway fund.

Mr. Robertson's, empowering the governor to appoint one additional notary for every thousand population in each county.

Mr. Van Gerder's Batavia water supply bill; also fixing at $2,500 the salary of the Niagara county surrogate.

Mr. Sawmiller's new Onondaga county penitentiary and jail bill.

Mr. Rhodes' bill, enabling Mount Vernon to expend $100,000 on highways.

Mr. Deyo's, providing that widows shall receive $150 of personal property of husbands, and repealing chapter 406, laws of 1889.

In the Assembly.

ALBANY, March 5.—Among the bills passed in the assembly were:

Mr. Sheehan's, fixing Erie county surrogate's yearly salary at $6,000 and his clerk at between $2,500 and $3,000.

Mr. Hitt's, making supervisors choose grand jurors according to showing of assessment rolls, as petit jurors are now selected.

Mr. Sloan's, reappropriating $49,573 of an unexpended balance and $25,000 for the payment of canal awards by the state board of claims.

Mr. Laughlin's, allowing the "Buffalo Association for the Relief of the Poor" to change its name to the "Old Men's Home and Buffalo Relief Association."

The Rochester Election.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., March 5.—The charter election progressed quietly here. The indications are that Mayor Cornelius R. Parsons is re-elected for the eighth time, but by a reduced majority. William Carroll, a prominent Democrat, ran against him.

The Weather.

Warmer weather; light snow; winds shifting to much colder northwesterly.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL.

Closing Quotations of the New York Stock Exchange.

NEW YORK, March 4.—Money on call easy, loaned at 4½ per cent. Exchange steady; posted rates, $4.81½@4.85½; actual rates, $4.80¾@4.80¾ for 60 days, $4.84½@4.84¾ for demand. Governments steady; currency 6s, 116 bid; 4s, coup., 122¾ bid; 4½s, do., 103½ bid.

Union Pacific, St. Paul, the sugar trusts and C. C. C. and St. Louis were the feature of the dealings, being the most actively traded in. There was considerable pressure to sell at the opening, which resulted in a decline of ⅛@⅜. Slight further losses were sustained and sugar trusts after opening 65⅝ retired to 64½ and then recovered to 66¼. The other active stocks generally recovered to a shade above the opening figures by 11 o'clock. C. C. C. and St. Louis was the feature of the second hour of business, advancing from 68¾ to 69⅝. The changes in the others were very slight. Lead trusts were the features of the trusts, advancing 1 per cent. to 18⅝. At the colse the market was dull but firm, at a slight advance over yesterday's prices.

What the Penns Valley Methodists are Doing.

From the Conference NEWS.

PENNS VALLEY.—Penns Valley Methodism is still seeking higher ground; a few days ago took a step in the right direction—to buy a parsonage. The pastors on the charge have lived at all the appointments, the renting of a house being at one place one year, a different place the next. No question has more annoyed the charge than the rent question, it is at last settled. The charge has bought a commodious, convenient and comfortable home at Spring Mills, for $950. Spring Mills is the central appointment on the circuit, so locating the pastor that with greater advantage to himself and the charge the work can be served; gives the pastor railroad facilities, being a railroad town. The brethren on the charge deserve great credit for their liberal response as the pastor presented the subscription paper, in a couple of days about $700 was safely pledged, and by the time this note appears we fully expect the whole amount will be secured. No brother need longer object to being read out for Penns Valley, for there awaits him a good home. The payments are such as can and will be met by the charge, and we think without crippling the various interests that lie too heavily on the heart of every true Methodist.

To-day the bargain was closed and payment made. BRO. HICKS.

THE NEWS OF EUROPE.

A Frightful Railroad Collision at Carlisle Station.

FOUR KILLED OUTRIGHT.

The Victims Horribly Mutilated—Fourteen Others Badly Injured and Some May Die—A Tomb Desecrated—The Firth of Forth Bridge Opened.

LONDON, March 5.—The brakes on the Scotch express failed to work this morning while approaching Carlisle station, on the border of England and Scotland, and the train, while still running at considerable speed, dashed into an engine just coming up to the station to take the express onward.

The crash was terrific, both engines and a number of carriages being demolished and scattered in fragments over the tracks.

Four Dead.

The noise of the escaping steam and the cries of the passengers added confusion to the scene.

As rapidly as possible a wrecking party set to work to rescue the victims.

As far as now known four persons were killed and fourteen injured, some so severely that they are not expected to survive. The victims were terribly mutilated.

Desecrated the Tomb.

LONDON, March 5.—Vienna dispatches tell of an outrage perpetrated at Galatz a few days ago and just revealed.

A priest who entered the tomb the day after the funeral of a military officer's wife discovered that the body had been stripped by thieves of the rich dress and jewels in which, according to an old Roumanian custom, the corpse had been decked before burial. The dead lady was the daughter of an ex-minister. Much excitement has been caused by the atrocity. The articles taken included rings, bracelets, satin slippers and earrings, the latter being literally torn out of the ears of the dead.

Wales Opened the Bridge.

EDINBURGH, March 5.—The great bridge over the Firth of Forth was formally opened today by the Prince of Wales with imposing ceremonies. A very distinguished company was present, which included Lord Rosebery, the Duke of Fife, Prince George of Wales, the Duke of Edinburgh, M. Eiffel and many notables of the engineering and railway world.

WASHINGTON NEWS.

A Monument to Commemorate the Battle of Trenton.

WASHINGTON, March 5.—The resolutions offered by Mr. Voorhees yesterday, referring to the lease of the Fur Seal Islands of Alaska, and directing the secretary of the treasury to refrain from executing the lease until the senate inquires into the matter, was reported adversely from the finance committee and was indefinitely postponed.

The senate passed a bill appropriating $30,000 for a monumental column to commemorate the battle of Trenton, and bills appropriating $100,000 each for public buildings at Dover, N. H., and Nashua, N. H.

At 1 o'clock the senate went into secret session, and expelled everybody but senators and senate employes from the gallery floor of that wing of the Capitol.

Taulbee May Die.

WASHINGTON, March 5.—Ex-Congressman Taulbee is in a critical condition. His physicians make the guarded statement that he is in no danger of dying within the next twenty-four hours, but beyond this they do not care to say anything.

Mr. Taulbee is being kept very quiet, and few persons are allowed to see him. He is conscious and has expressed a wish to make a statement to the newspapers, but this his physicians have declined to allow him to do. They think that the excitement that may be caused by making such a statement would work disastrous effects. At present the patient is very weak.

Presidential Nominations.

WASHINGTON, March 5.—The president sent the following nominations to the senate:

To be consuls of the United States: William Burgess, of New Jersey, at Tunstall, England; Herbert W. Bowen, of New York, at Barcelona; F. W. Catlin, of New York, at Munich.

The Republican League.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., March 5.—The state delegation to the National League of Republican clubs began to arrive at Amusement hall shortly after 11 o'clock Tuesday morning, and from that time until the assemblage was called to order the members busied themselves in wire pulling for the next president of the organization and in becoming acquainted with each other. The convention hall is the largest in the city, having a seating capacity for 1,500 people, and it was tastily and elaborately decorated. Shortly after noon, when Hon. A. J. Watson, chairman of the local executive committee, called the assemblage to order and made the address of welcome, there were nearly 600 delegates present. At least 100 more are expected before the convention adjourns. Among the delegations arriving late were those from Massachusetts, New York, Connecticut and Ohio, who were delayed by the floods, but they reached the city safely Tuesday morning.

Exposition Buildings Burned.

PLATTSMOUTH, Neb., March 5.—The exposition buildings and street car barns were burned here. The loss is very heavy.

They Kidnaped the Professors.

KALAMAZOO, Mich., March 5.—The Kalamazoo college is all torn up over a sensation that may cause trouble for a large body of students. About twenty students enticed Professors Ferry and Trowbridge to the rooms of a senior named Des Artels, and there bound them hand and foot. They then carried the professors two miles into the country and left them in a corn field. The night was cold and a raw wind was blowing. One of the teachers finally succeeded in getting at his pocket knife and cut the cords that held them.

Rubber Company's Employes Strike.

STOUGHTON, Mass., March 5.—About thirty-five employes of the Stoughton Rubber company have struck against a reduction of from 5 to 10 per cent. in wages. The firm claims the reduction was necessary on account of the dullness of trade.

LAID TO REST.

Solemn Services Over the Remains of Mr. W. H. Youngman—Laid to Rest.

On Sunday, at half past nine o'clock a. m., an exceedingly large concourse of friends and neighbors gathered at the Lutheran church at Millheim, to pay their last tribute of love and esteem to the memory of Mr. W. H. Youngman, who was called to his heavenly home.

There were about seven hundred people assembled in the church and the occasion was one of great solemnity.

Mr. C. W. Albright acted as usher. About ten o'clock the funeral cortege arrived at the church, and appropriate services were held over his remains.

The handsome casket was covered with black cloth, having beautiful silver mountings, In the center of the lid was a silver plate bearing the inscription "Father" Under the glass lid resting upon the breast of the loved form was an exquisite lily.

On the top of the casket, which was placed at the right of the pulpit by the following pall bearers, lay a lovely wreath of flowers: D. L. Zerby, J. F. Harter, J. C. Smith, Cyrus Brumgard, A. A. Frank and W. H. Weaver.

Mr. Youngman was a faithful and consistent member of the Lutheran church. The Rev. M. L. Deitzler, of Aaronsburg, pastor of the Lutheran church at that place, conducted the solemn and impressive service.

His words brought tears of sympathy and regret to the eyes of many present.

After the benediction had been pronounced the body, which looked very natural in appearance, lay in state until the greater part of the people had looked upon the familiar features for the last time on earth,

The funeral procession then moved slowly to the New Lutheran cemetery where interment was made.

ATTACKED BY A TRAMP

A Railroad Flagman Choked Into Unconsciousness.

ROBBED OF ALL HIS MONEY

The Door of His Shanty Kicked Into Splinters—His Chest Smashed Open and Rifled—The People Excited. Ready to Lynch the Garroter.

FANWOOD, N. J., March 5.—Old Sam Perry is a flagman whose station is in the deep cut near Fairwood, N. J. His business is to see the track is kept clear, and he lives in the little shanty the railroad company has erected upon the bank. It is a lonely life for the old man, but he has learned to know the engineers and firemen who speed the trains through the gap, and they wave their hands out of the cab windows at him as he waves the white flag at their approach.

The few visitors are mostly tramps and peddlers, who from motives of economy, or because they haven't the money, use the company's highway as a footpath.

Dropped from the Car.

It was late when a rumble announced the approach of a train, and the old man, lantern in hand, went out to signal "all right." It was a coal train, and as it passed the figure of a man dropped to the ground from the side of one of the empty cars.

Perry does not like tramps, and when he saw this one he climbed the bank and went into his shanty. He had just placed the lantern on the table and bolted the door when there came a knock.

"Who's there?" asked the old man.

"It's only me," replied the tramp. "I want a drink of water."

"Open, or I'll Smash It."

"There is no water here," said Perry. "Go down to the spring at the bottom of the bank and you'll get all you want."

"Open this door —— quick," yelled the man, as he battered the wood with his fist. "You'd better open it or I'll smash it in."

The old man shrunk back to the corner of his little room, so stricken with terror that he could not utter a word.

"Open up, d'ye hear?" repeated the tramp, as he brought his feet into play and fairly shook the shanty with the force of the blows. Presently the wood began to splinter and crack, and in a minute the door was burst in.

Choked and Robbed.

The old man in the corner saw all this by the flickering light of the lantern on the table. He saw a figure, strong and athletic looking, with a face the outlines of which were concealed by a few weeks' growth of beard, advance toward the corner where he tremblingly crouched.

He heard a voice demand that he give up his money. He had $42—his month's wages, all the money he had in the world—in his pocket, but he denied the existence of it. Then, the last thing he remembers, a pair of strong, muscular hands reached out, and, clutching his throat, contracted slowly. The lantern on the table seemed to dance up and down before his eyes; then its outlines became indistinct, and for a brief while he saw a queer, indistinct light bobbing and shooting about the room, which finally went out altogether.

May Be Lynched.

The cool morning air coming in through the broken door revived the old flagman at daybreak. He was in a bad way and could hardly move. His neck was purple in ridges and his face bore evidence of the beating he had received. His money was gone, and a chest in the room had been smashed open and rifled.

A track walker found him and sent out an alarm for the garroter. A great deal of excitement prevails, and there is likely to be trouble if the man should be caught. The people say they will lynch him.

A State Treasurer Suspended.

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., March 5.—State Treasurer Noland has been suspended pending an examination of his books by Governor Francis. Mr. Noland says his accounts with the state are correct, and will bear the closest investigation. It is said that the only cause for the investigation is that Noland has not followed the statutory requirements in keeping his books. The violations, however, are said to be merely technical, and can be satisfactorily explained.

HAWKING AND PLUMBING.

The Supreme Court of Pennsylvania Decides Adverse to the Custom.

Philadelphia Evening Telegram, Oct 20.

Another case involving the validity of the laws against hawking and peddling reached the Supreme Court this morning, having been appealed from the Quarter Sessions of Schuylkill county, Four defendants were convicted of having sold from door to door, in Mahanoy City, packages of a washing powder manufactured by a Rhode Island corporation. The goods were sold by the defendants on account of the Company, they being salaried employes, and having no interest in profits of the sales.

The judgement was rendered under the Act of April 17, 1846, which provides that no person shall sell or expose for sale in Schuylkill county, as a hawker, peddler, or travelling agent, any foreign or domestic goods, wares, or merchandise. Counsel for the convicted men argued in the Supreme Court that under the Constitution of this State, the acquisition, possession, and protection of property and, as necessarily incidental thereto, the sale or exchange of it, are inherent and indefeasible rights which even the Legislature cannot invade, and an Act of Assembly which makes the owner of chattels who seeks to dispose of them from house to house guilty of a penal offense, is an invasion of those rights, and therefore void.

They further urged that an Act which prohibits the sale in any part of the State of goods manufactured and owned by citizens of another State is an interference with the exclusive right of Congress, under the Federal Constitution, to regulate interstate commerce and is void for that reason. In support of these propositions counsel cited decisions by the Supreme Court of the United States, and by the Courts of many of the States, but the Supreme Court, apparently determined to follow its recent ruling on the subject in the case of the Philadelphia peddlers informed counsel on the other side that they need not make any argument.

A Serious Knife Thrust.

One day last week when Mr. Perry Gentzel, of near Zion, attempted to butcher a beef by some mishap the knife he held in his hand was unaccountably and accidently projected against himself penetrating his thigh and inflicting a serious, though not a fatal wound. Mr Gentzel, however, fainted dead away. He was carried into the house and Dr. Fisher, of Zion sent for, who responded promptly and gave the necessary surgical attention and on Saturday Mr. Gentzel was reported as getting along very well.

IN THE SECOND DEGREE.

Charles Brown Found Guilty of Murder in the Second Degree.

At ten o'clock on Saturday night the jury on the Brown—Lovett murder case in Lock Haven found a verdict of "guilty of murder in the second degree," against Charles Brown for the murder of William Lovett, at Lockport in December last.

The jury was not out very long so that the evidence was very conclusive in that direction. The verdict gives pretty general satisfaction, as there was hardly sufficient evidence, and too many mitigating circumstances, to make a plain case of murder in the first degree.

Waked up Effectually.

A lethargic, dormant condition of the liver is hardly to be overcome with drastic cathartics and nauseous cholagogues. A gentler, pleasanter and far more effective means exists of arousing the organ when somnolent. This is Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, vouched for by the medical fraternity, tested by the public for many years. A resumption by the billary organ of its secretive function, with the activity attendant up on health, a return to regularity of the bowels, and a renewal of digestion, are the no less happy and certain results of using the Bitters systematically. Its laxative effective is never painful and drenching, its tendency being rather to perpetuate regularity than to produce a copious action. Malaria, nervousness debility, kidney troubles and neuralgia it subdues effectually.

Howard Happenings.

The roads are impassable.

The business department of Howard is in a flourishing condition.

Miss Alice Pletcher, daughter of Shuman Pletcher, departed for West Virginia, on Wednesday last where she will attend a select school.

A protracted meeting is now in progress in the M. E. church in this place. Rev. George E. King is proclaiming the gospel truths night after night to apparently sincere and attentive congregations

Mr. Hayes Schenck on last Wednesday received a serious injury on the eye caused from the blow of a stick. Dr. T. R. Hensyl rendered the necessary surgical attendance.

Words of Advice.

To those who require a stimulent. There are many to whom we could recommend you: We think there are just as many honest Liquor dealers as there are dealers in any other class of merchandise, and again we believe that there are many who sell whiskey or any other commodity, who are not reliable. We have noticed that our best physicians and superintendents of hospitals have by there testimonials highly recommended Klein's Silver Age Rye therefore we say his is the place to which we would advise every one to go. He sells six years old Guckenheimer, Finch, Gibson, or Overholt for $1 per full quart or six quarts for $5. Wines, Brandies, and Gins cheap as the cheapest. RETIRED WITH HONORS.

Col. W R Teller, at 10 O'clock on Saturday Night Severed His Connection With the Bush House.

Col. W R Teller has retired from the proprietorship of the Bush House. On Saturday night at ten o'clock his connection with that famous hotel—made still more famous under the proprietorship of Mr. Teller—was severed and he retired from the active duties of "Mine host," which change will no doubt be an appreciative one after the number of years spent in active service in the successful management of the finest and best hotel in Bellefonte.

It has been known for some time that Mr. Teller would retire on the first of March and on Friday evening his friends dropped in and tendered their "congratulations" on what is hoped will be a pleasant change. But on Saturday when they realized how soon they were to lose so good a landlord it made the friends feel badly and then they dropped in to "condole" with the Colonel, who, of course, accepted the "congratulations" and "condolences" with the amiability and warmth that is proverbial with him and it might also be added, so did his friends.

The new firm that took possession on Mr. Teller's retirement is Daggott & Elliott, who came here from New York State. Mr. Teller and family have moved into the handsome stone house on High street, formerly occupied by ex Judge Irwin, deceased, where they can be found from this time forward. We are very glad that Mr. Teller concluded to remain in Bellefonte as he is a very sociable and companionable gentleman; Mrs. Teller is a highly cultivated and charming lady and their departure would leave a vacancy in Bellefonte society that would be hard to fill. We understand that in the future Mr Teller will devote his time and attention to several business investments in which he is financially interested—chief among which is the Graysville Ore Mining Company.

Nasal Catarrh.

Mr. T. A. Williams, a leading dry goods merchant of Spartanburg, S. C., writes under date of November 8, 1888: "For years I had a severe case of nasal catarrh, with all the disagreeable effects which belong to that disease, which make life painful and almost unendurable. I used medicines prescribed by leading physicians, and suggested by numbers of friends, but without getting any better. In the fall of 1887, I began to take Swift's Specific [S S S]. It had the desired effect, and cured me after taking a few bottles. In my opinion Swift's Specific [S S S] is the only medicine now in use that will effect a permanent cure of catarrh.

Tormenting Pains.

I had an attack of rheumatism that clung to me with persistence for nearly four years, defying all the remedies prescribed by physicians, and numbers of other medicines which I took. I was continually troubled with tormenting pains. I finally concluded to give up all other treatment, and went to the drug store of Dr J C Franklin, in this city; here, I purchased a bottle of S S S. After taking several of which, I was perfectly cured. I have been well of the disease since last January. I consider S S S a blessing to all afflicted with rheumatism. S. E. JORLAN,

Could Scarcely Walk.

In the year 1885 I had a severe attack of rheumatism which so affected me that I could scarcely walk for several months. I tried numbers of remedies but without affording me relief. I was induced to try S S S. After taking several bottles I was completely cured and once again able to attend to my business. From my experience I can safely say that S S S is the best rheumatism medicine in the world. M. SESSEN, Abbeville, S C

The Evidence Closed.

CHARLES BROWN SUBJECTED TO A RIGID CROSS EXAMINATION AND FAILED TO COME UP TO TIME.

Numerous Other Witnesses Examined Whose Testimony Was Nearly All Alike.

The interest in the Brown—Lovett murder trial in Lock Haven is now at its height and at the opening of every session of court the house is just packed. The Commonwealth has offered the following important evidence:

Charles Lindsey sworn.—Live in Gallagher township; remembered the time of Lovett murder; came to town Saturday at noon; saw Charles Brown in the evening, also saw Lovett; both in Keating House; William Lovett said to Brown, "stand back I don't want nothing to do with you;" Jack Lovett and myself went down street; went back again; saw William Lovett next morning dead, went over the river and found Lovett in bad condition, and his head beaten badly; I woke Mr. Hoover; saw Sweezy and Jack Lovett there; did not examine the wounds; saw blood in the road and about other places; had talk with Brown on 20th of November at Hugh McLeod's; we were talking about the Lovett boys; he told me that Bill Lovett said he had thrown me down the stairs, he said he would fix those d—— Lovetts before the year was over.

Samuel Parsons sworn.—I live at Franklin House saw Brown and Lovett Saturday afternoon on Jay street; Chas. Brown said to Lovett he wanted to fight him; Lovett said he was sick; Brown said never mind I will do you up yet.

Oliver Hepburn sworn.—Live in Lock Haven, remember the time of murder. saw Lovett and Brown coming down Jay street; Charley Brown said to Lovett "I will slay you to-night;" did not know Charley Brown before that day.

Charles J. Hagar sworn.—Live at Farrandsville; I know Charles Brown and William Lovett; I have known Brown for 7 years; [objected by defense; offer put in writing] objections over-ruled and witness proceeded. Had a conversation with Brown over a year ago in this city; we were talking about William Lovett, when Brown said if he ever got the chance that Alex. Martin had Lovett would be a dead man.

Rufus Merril sworn.—Live at Chathams Run; not personally acquainted with Charles Brown, met him once and had a conversation with him last summer; he said if he ever got a chance at Lovett he would leave him lay in the cold awhile.

Cross-examined.—This was about August; we were talking about the fight Charley had with Quay when this subject came up.

William Probst sworn.—I work in the tannery at Johnsonburg; was at home last spring; had talk with Charles Brown; he asked me which I thought the best man, he or William Lovett, and said he would have revenge on Lovett if he had to do it foully.

Cross-examined.—This conversation took place in Gallagher township last spring; no one else was present; we were working together; I worked eight or nine days there; Brown had the contract to do the work, and two other men were working there; Lovetts were not there at all; did not tell Lovett of the conversation.

Emily Pattison sworn.—Live in Gallagher township; know Charles Brown; was at my house; he said if William Lovett ever crossed his path he would kill him.

Cross examined.—He said this to me in presence of my boy; it was in March, last year; he wes there two weeks hauling props and boarding with me.

George Patterson sworn.—Live in Noyes township; know Brown and Lovett; he said if he came in contact with Lovett he could kill him in a minute.

Cross examined.—This talk occurred in Gallagher township. Brown was working for me; he was talking about which was the best man, he or Lovett; don't know whether they were bad friends or not.

Elijah Callahan sworn.—Live in Gallagher township; know Brown and Lovett; heard Brown say on 4th of July, 1888, that if he came in contact with William Lovett he would fix him so he would never fight him again or no other man.

Fred Weaver sworn.—I know Charles Brown, heard of the murder on Sunday afternoon, was in town on Saturday evening, went home about 1 o'clock Sunday morning, I heard some one say "Bill get up and go home;" saw a man laying in the road and three standing on the board walk; they said to me "do you see him," three times; as I walked along they followed me some distance and stopped; I went on home; one man was smaller than the other two; did not know them.

John F Glise sworn.—Was in Lock Haven Saturday night about 6 o'clock; went to Lockport about 8 o'clock; stopped at Gummo's; Brown lives in same direction from bridge; left Gummo's about 1 o'clock; met Charles and William Brown and walked down together; Chas. said: "there comes one of them, let's run;" we went on down, after we got across the lock he said he had a fight with William Lovett; that he hit him with a club and don't know whether I have killed him or not.

J N Sloan sworn.—I am an undertaker, took charge of the body of Wm. Lovett after the murder and buried it; I found five wounds on the head; found some stones in some of the wounds on the left side of the head; (the stones were shown by witness); the knees of the pants were muddy as though the victim had fallen after being hit.

Jack Lovett, brother of the murdered man was sworn.—He was so badly intoxcated at the time of the fight that the evidence he gave in, instead of throwing much light on the affair, was simply a mixed jargon of circumstances, such as are already known.

George Sweezy sworn.—Live in Gallagher township; work in the woods; live with my father; know Charles Brown and the Lovetts; remember being in town on Saturday; came in the morning, with Charles Lindsey; when I went home met Bill Lovett and came back with him and Sweezey in the afternoon; went to the Keating house; saw the three Browns there; Lindsey and I went to Bill Phipps' in the evening; did not see Brown and Lovett in saloon after that; I met them in the bridge on my way over—Jack and William Lovett, Charles and William Brown; we went on to other end of bridge; met Albert Conway and Dan Green over there; William Lovett was quarrelling with Conway; the next I remember Jack Lovett started after Charley Brown, William Lovett was standing there and William Brown walked around him; the Browns whispered to each other and started down the road; I saw Charley Brown at the wagon and heard chains rattling; he came back with a club and struck me, making threats, and he knocked Bill Lovett down on his knees; then struck him four times and started to run down the road; that was the last I saw of him; I was 16 steps away when Brown struck Lovett.

Jacob Probst sworn.—Live in Dunnstown; Know Charley Brown and Wm Lovett; heard of the killing of Lovett; Charley Brown woke me about one o'clock; went down and left him in; Charley said he had a racket with the Lovetts; had hit one of them with a brake stick and the other with his fist and asked me to go back with him to see if he was dead; told me they had got away with the Lovetts but did not do it fair, got the brake stick and hit Billy and Jack was so close he hit him with his fist, and then hit Billy again, The cross examination was the same as direct.

On Wednesday afternoon a couple witnesses were recalled and then the Commonwealth rested, and the defense was opened by Mr. McCormick.

The first witness called for the defense was William Brown, brother of Charles who testified to having been in town and along with the party but not present when the killing was done. He never heard Charles say he would kill Lovett.

Quite a number of other witnesses were called whose evidence was simply corroborative.

Peter Coble. This witness lived with William Brown in December and came to town between 6 and 7 o'clock with him. Met a man on the road and he crossed river with them. Brown and he went to Tanner's Home. When Charles and William Brown started home he was with them and Lovett and others were also with them. They started from McLeod's. At toll house Bill Lovett wanted Charley Brown to help him get Jack across the bridge and they started. Afterwards witness saw Bill Lovett come back to town and witness was hunting William Brown and as he could not find him he started home and passed Charley Brown and Jack Lovett on bridge.

Cross-examined After they left their bundles they all went back to McLeod's and stayed until Lovetts came. Then all went to bridge. The witness said Charley Brown did not say that night that he could lick Bill Lovett. Witness said he did not say so in a former statement.

Wm. Phipps: Keeps hotel in Lock Haven. Saw William Lovett in his hotel on that Saturday evening. This offer was put in writings and objections sustained. The witness knew George Sweezy. Had a conversation with him. He told him how the fight occurred. Said that after they got through bridge Jack Lovett and Conway had trouble and Jack Lovett chased Brown down to wagon and Brown went under wagon and Bill Lovett, who had a billy, and himself and Sweezy, who had a knife, met Brown at upper end of wagon and Billy struck at Brown with billy. Then Brown struck Bill with club; had club in one hand.

THE PRISONER'S OWN STORY.

Charles Brown, the defendant, was then put on the stand. Is 33 years old and has lived in Clinton county about 19 years. Knew William Lovett 14 or 15 years; had worked in woods together. The witness came to town about 4 o'clock with Joe Englert on that Saturday, and went to McLeod's and then to Phipp's hunting George. Then went to Rohrhirst's and asked for George. Englert treated then. Jack Lovett and others came in and Lindsay treated and witness treated. After that he found George down town and then went to Tanner's home and met Jack and William Lovett in front of bar and George shook hands with Jack and witness went up to Bill and latter said, "Keep away from me; I don't want any trouble with you." Witness asked him what was the matter. He said, "You said I only peeled 20 or 25 logs a day for you." The witness then told him it was not so, and they went in and took a drink, witness paying for them. Then Bill Lovett borrowed a wheel [$1] from him. Afterwards they met at McLeod's and McLeod told Bill Lovett to go ont. Then all went to the bridge and left bundles and went back to McLeod's and then to Scheid's, he stopping outside and talking with Dutchy Sowers before he went in. Afterwards at McIsaac's alley met the Lovetts and others; then started to bridge together, but Jack wanted to go back and lick that Scotch s. of a b. for putting him out, but Bill and others got him towards bridge and Bill asked witness to help him. About the middle of the bridge Jack would not go any farther until he got another drink. Bill told witness to stay with Jack until he (Bill) went back after a bottle. Then William Brown came up to them and afterwards Bill Lovett and Conway came running and Bill said, Myers and the whole police force were after him and then Sweezy took out a bottle and they took a drink, but witness did not feel like drinking as he had just thrown up. Then they crossed bridge and Lovett knocked Conway down twice, and he (witness) came back to town looking for Conway's brothers and re-crossed bridge with Blesh, Sweezy came to him and said "Bill Lovett has a billy" and showing a long knife said, "if he hits me with it I'll put this into his guts and turn it around." After that Bill struck bridge with billy and said "You Dutch s of a b. you was after the police," and started after me, and Jack said, "give it to them and I'll cut his Dutch heart out." Then he ran and his overcoat got between his legs and tripped him and as he fell a stone struck him on arm. He got up and they followed him up close. He ran to the wagon, taking out his knife as he ran, and taking brake stick out of socket he cut the rope. Jack followed him around the wagon and Bill who had a billy and Sweezy with his knife headed him off above. Both had weapons drawn ready to strike. He turned around and met Jack again and knocked him down. Bill struck at him with the billy when he swung around and the club struck Bill and the billy wrapped around the club. Then Bill struck again, the billy striking him on the hat. Then he knocked Bill down with the club and striking him again he ran down the road and pitched the stick into wagon. He overtook Wm. Brown and afterwards met Klise at Gummo's gate, and they walked down the tow-path. He told Klise that he had had an awful time at the bridge. Said that the Lovetts came at him with knives and billies, and he knocked Jack and Bill both down with a club, but did not know how bad he hurt them. After leaving Klise and William Brown he went to Jake Probst's and told him the same that he did Klise and wanted Probst to go along with him to see how badly he had hurt them, but Probst said he would not go as they had almost killed him once. Further offer was then put in writing. The Court said they could prove facts, but not his belief. Witness said Jack Lovett struck at him at the wagon and Jack was stopped some by running against coupling pole sticking out of back of wagon. Conway was not lying in the road when witness came back from Lock Haven. William Lovett was under the influence of liquor.

Cross examined: Witness had never had a fight with the Lovetts before this. (Here defense objected, stating that it was not cross examination, but the Court stated that the Commonwealth could ask defendant any question they had a mind to, but defense insisted the offer should be but in writing.)

From a Bellefonte gentleman who was in Lock Haven on Thursday we learn that the sentiment is pretty evenly divided for and against the prisoner and it is not at all certain how the result will be.

The continuation of the trial is watched with great interest by hundreds Brown continues his cross examination as follows:

Witness stated that on Saturday William Lovett and he were on good terms. Jack Lovett came to Tanner's home after witness got there was no ill will between them. Then William Lovett came in and they drank together and were on good terms. Could not say when or where he saw him last before that day. The prisoner lost his temper several times, and at one time said "he could not help what witnesses swore to, as they would swear his life to hell," and was very crusty in his answers. He did not know that he met William Lovett in front of Scheid's between 4

—Mr. William Thompson, of Potter Mills, had another stroke of paralysis on Wednesday of last week. He had a similar attack some three years ago. He is a good citizen and was this spring reelected justice of the peace.

—Potatoes are as scarce as hen teeth and apples a great deal scarcer. Butter is scarce and selling at 25 cents, while eggs are going at a shilling, when there are any on the market to go. Why is it that all the country towns and villages have plenty of eggs, while there are very few in the Bellefonte stores?

—The former stalwart republican, masculine gender, Keystone Gazette, under its new editor, has become an effeminate neuter gender journal, without one word of politics in its issue of this week, slush and gush constituting its main features. The Republican is the only real genuine republican paper in Centre county today.

—The county commissioners of Clearfield county on last Saturday met in session and fixed the rate of levy taxes for the year 1890 at 7 mills for the ordinary county fund, and ½ mill for a bridge fund. The rate of tax in Centre county was 2½ mills for 1889 and the tax payers think that high. Better go to Clearfield county and taste of the difference.

A $40,000 FIRE.

THE GRANT MATCH FACTORY, AT PHILIPSBURG, CAUGHT FIRE ON THURSDAY NIGHT AND

Was Burned to the Ground.

The Fire Originated in the Engine Room—It Occurred Near Midnight —No Insurance on the Building.

Special to the DAILY NEWS.

PHILIPSBURG, Pa., Feb. 23, 1890.

It was between eleven and twelve o'clock on Thursday night when the blowing of steam whistles and the ringing of many bells startled every sleeper in the borough of Philipsburg from their repose only to gaze on flames and tongues of fire shrieking and crackling as they darted from every window and side of the Grant Match factory.

The fire department was speedily on the ground but, owing to the high wind and the combustible material of which the factory was composed, their services availed nothing toward the extinguishing of the flames, although every effort was put forth to do so. They succeeded, however, in confining the fire to the factory.

The fire originated in the engine room. The night watchman, a man by the name of Epheart, was asleep in the building at the time and did not know of the fire until the building was half consumed. He succeeded in escaping without any injuries to himself

The total loss will foot up $40,000 on which there was no insurance. Many of the firm who had their all invested in this enterprise are now penniless. The factory gave employment to about fifty persons—most of them boys and girls between the ages of 10 and 20 years. It is hardly likely that the factory will be rebuilt.

A Narrow Escape From Death.

Special to the TRIBUNE.

HUNTINGDON, Pa., February 25.—Chas. Hall, colored, of this place, made a most miraculous escape from instant death this evening. He and his father were walking on the railroad track towards their home, which is located at the eastern confines of town. When they were nearing the end of a sharp curve in the tracks Chicago limited came thundering upon them from the rear. The elder Hall succeeded in jumping aside and escaped, but his son was struck by the pilot of the engine and hurled over the telegraph wires on the left, a distance of thirty-five feet. His left leg was broken in two places below the knee, and his body was terribly bruised and lacerated. The unfortunate young man was removed to his home and, strange as it may seem, his physician gives assurance of his recovery. The train which struck him was running at a rate of forty-five miles an hour.

They Would Make Good and Faithful Servants.

Next year Blair county elects a Judge, and it is understood by some that Judge Dean will not seek a re-election, owing to his extensive business interests. Blair being a strong Republican county, the Democrats will hardly make a nomination. Among those prominently mentioned for the honor is Daniel J. Neff, Esq., one of the best lawyers of Central Pennsylvania. Blair county has not had a Republican Congressman since the war, and will make an effort to have representative Scull succeeded by a Blair county man. J. D. Hicks, a prominent lawyer of Altoona, appears to be in the lead for the county nomination.—Pittsburg Times.

Death in Millheim.

On Wednesday evening at 5 o'clock Mr. W. H. Youngman, a prominent merchant of Millheim, breathed his last. He came to Millheim about two years ago from Adamsburg, Snyder county and bought out the store of J. W. Snook and with his brotherinlaw, J. I. Howell taking possession at once, which business has prospered under the combined management up to the present time and is now one of the most flourishing in Millheim. The cause of Mr. Youngman's death was Meningitis, superinduced by an attack of the grip.

A Fortune From the Grit Remedy.

It is rumored that Dr. Knorr, of Germany, the discoverer of antipyrine, the great grip remedy, has made considerably over a million dollars by the winter's epidemic. The medicine sold at $1.40 cents an ounce and Dr. Knorr gets royalty of about sixty cents on every ounce sold. The demand everywhere was something tremendous. Five dollars per ounce was frequently paid for the drug, and it was often unattainable at any price during the height of the visitation.

Death of Mrs. Weaver.

Rebecca, wife of Wm. Weaver, of Farmers Mills, who had a stroke of palsy recently died on the 13th inst. She was 56 years, 11 months and 4 days old, and was interred at Tusseyville on the 17th inst. Rev. Eisenberg officiated. She was a daughter of J. From, of Tusseyville and formerly the wife of constable Bear, who was shot dead at Tusseyville by young Campbell. Her children are all grown up. Her late husband survives her, and keenly feels the loss of a good helpmate.

Resolutions of the K. of L.

At their regular meeting, held Monday evening, February 24, 1890, the following resolutions were unanimously adopted by the members of Bellefonte Assembly 2333 Knights of Labor.

Resolved, That we denounce the bill now pending in the Senate of the United States introduced by Senator Butler, of South Carolina, as a bill in the interest of monopoly by working upon the prejudice of the people, and driving the colored man back to the Republican party and the people of the South to the Democratic party that speeches being made in Congress upon this bill are for that purpose and nothing else, as the colored people are American citizens, and the law would be unconstitutional.

WHEREAS, There is a growing tendency toward corruption at the polls in this State; and whereas, a free, pure and unbiased ballot is the only safe guard of the liberties of the people,

Resolved, That we demand a law inaugurating the Australian system of voting, and we especially appeal to all honest and patriotic men, regardless of party, to urge the adoption of this measure. We demand a law prohibiting the using of free railroad passes by any member of the State Legislature, county or State officers, and judges of the courts of the State. We brand it as a species of bribing against the interests of the people.

We demand the owning, printing and distributing of text books for the public schools of the State; said books to be furnished to the patrons of the schools of the State at actual cost of production.

WHEREAS, The State tinkering of railroad laws has not given to the people that relief from railroad encroachment desired, in fact, has only fastened the monopoly and strengthened the positions of corporations; therefore be it

Resolved, That we declare in favor of National control of freight and passenger rates, and ask for an enlargement of the Inter-state Commerce law, whereby all parts of the country may receive the same benefits of transportation, and that the products of the farm receive the same attention and consideration as mechanical products.

WHEREAS, The present salary and fee bills governing the salaries of State and county officers were established at a time when the products of the farm, factory and furnace commanded prices much higher than now; therefore be it

Resolved, That we demand the reduction of the salaries of all State and county officers, proportionately with the decline of the prices of farm products.

WHEREAS, The different telegraph companies of this country have been robbing the people of the United States at the rate of $100,000,000 in the space of twelve years by extortionate charges for the transmission of intelligence, on an invested capital of less than one fourth of that amount, therefore be it

Resolved, That we demand at the hands of the National government the building of a National telegraph system to be operated in connection with the post office.

Resolved, That this Assembly favors a general pension law for all honorably discharged soldiers and sailors of the late war.

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be furnished the different newspapers of the county for publication.

—"TWO SOLDIERS," by Captain Charles King, author of "Dunraven Ranch," "The Colonels Daughter," "From the Ranks," "The Deserter," etc., is the complete novel in LIPPINCOTT'S MAGAZINE for March, and is characterized by the same dash and charm of style which makes all Captain King's stories such entertaining reading. Love and war, two topics that age cannot stale, from the theme of the tale, and the characters of two soldiers, one a brave and honorable man, the other a dastard in both love and war, are brought into sharp contrast. The dastard appears to succeed at first by clever wire-pulling, but virtue triumphs in the end. There is a capital description of Indian fighting, and the story is full of action, and is bright and healthy throught.

Died.

Feb 24, 1890, near Beech Creek, Lidia, wife of Levi Rupert. Mrs. Rupert was born Jan. 13, 1848, and was 41 years, 1 month and 11 days old when she died. She leaves a husband and three sons to mourn their loss. She was a patient sufferer for some time, but had put her trust in God. She was a consistent member of the M. E. church at Beech Creek.

$6,000 BAIL BOND

IS WHAT JUDGE FURST ASKED TO TURN FIETTA WEAVER

Out of the Bellefonte Jail,

A Pretty High Appraisement Considering that Murderers are so Plenty—Evidence as Produced at the Hearing.

Court convened at 10 o'clock a. m. on Friday to give opportunity for the habeas corpus hearing in the case of Fietta Weaver, Susan Auman and Jonas Auman who have been lodged in the Bellefonte jail since January 28th on the charge of murdering Andrew Weaver, Sr. The Commonwealth had quite a number of witnesses present and the evidence as produced is, in brief, as follows;

As most of the parties are German, John F. Harter was sworn as interpreter.

John Mullen, a lad of 13 years, was the first witness called; he can read but not write; cannot speak English. Live with Jonas Auman; know Fietta Weaver, who is my mother, and the man that was killed. Was in Fietta's house that morning and saw three butcher knives. [Knives described by witness.] Nothing more of importance elicited.

Jonas Auman called. Andrew Weaver, the man killed, lived with Susan Auman, my mother; Fietta is my sister. Andrew Weaver was killed January 28th; first heard of it about 10 o'clock. Saw him last between 7 and 8 o'clock. Ran down to Fietta's and found old man lying dead at the porch. Fietta was in the house; she said the old man had killed himself. Went for squire Garthoff. Cannot see Fietta's from my house.

Noah Lingle called. Remember the morning Andrew Weaver was killed. On my way home from John Coufers, I passed near the Weaver's and saw Fietta and the old man throwing stones at each other. Fietta went into house then came out and said she would kill the old man. Susan and Jonas Auman went into there own house and Fietta and the old man went into Fietta's house. Heard some one call but did not know who it was. Witness described threats and actions of Fietta and Andrew in their fight.

Mrs. Jacob Shaffer called. Live above Penn Hall. Did live with Jonas Auman; was there a week before Andrew was killed; Susan Auman told me Andrew Weaver was killed; she said he was bleeding himself to death; I went down to Fietta's and found Andrew lying on right side of porch. Fietta was then in the house. I heard Fietta say at one time that she would cripple the old man; do not know that she was cross at him.

The testimony of the next witness called was unimportant so we forbear from giving it.

J C Stover called—Live in Penn township; got word at 9.35 about the murder, went over at once; found Andrew lying on the floor. Asked Fietta what was wrong; she said the old man threatened to kill her then fell down dead; saw blood on door and floor.

Dr. E S Frank called. Assisted Dr. C S Musser in the post mortem examination. Wound was between the 5th and 6th rib under the arm pit and penetrating the heart; the wound was one inch in width. It would produce instant death. Made a post mortem examination next day; wound was made by a large knife.

Justice of Peace Garthoff called: Went to place of murder and found old man lying with one foot on the floor. Parties were arrested and brought before me.

Susan Auman's testimony was substantially as others given above. With this the testimony ended.

The court concluded from the evidence produced that he would release Fietta on a $6,000 bail bond, which she failing to procure was sent back to jail. Jonas was held in $500 recognizance for his appearance at next term of court to give in testimony, and Susan Auman was discharged.

VEIDORFFER VS. FORCEY.

In the above case the hearing commenced exactly at two o'clock. Four witnesses were called by the Commonwealth and their evidence was in every particular like the report of the occurence printed in the DAILY NEWS when it happened that it is unnecessary to reprint it now.

Dr. R J Young, the physician who has been in constant attendance upon Forcey, testified that the man was in a fair way of recovery, so far as he could see.

The Court ordered a consultation of physicians on the condition of the man and the hearing was continued until Wednesday last when the physicians will present their certificate of the man's condition and, if it be not dangerous, Veidorfer will be released on a $5,000 bail bond.

Progress of Methodism.

Bishop Randolph S Foster, who is on his way to the conference at Cumberland on March 5, in an address to the Methodist Episcopal ministers of Baltimore on the work of the church, said forty years ago the Methodist Episcopals numbered 700, and now they number 5,000,000. Then there were only three important educational institutions, while now there are a large number connected with the denomination, and the educational work among the colored population alone is greater than all the educational work of forty years ago, when he was pastor of the Mulberry street church, New York, and received $1,250 a year salary, the largest paid to any man except the Bishop at that time. Bishop Foster has been a minister fifty-three years. He is seventy-two years old.

—Mr. and Mrs. J D Emery [colored] celebrated the tenth anniversary of their wedding on Wednesday, February 26th. They received many handsome, costly and useful presents, among them being a handsome lamp from Mrs. D H Hastings, and a very handsome present from the family of Mr. Emery's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Enoch Emery, of Williamsport.

—The Milesburg band bed room suit drawing came off on Monday night last and a Mr. Bumgardner, of Eagleville, was the holder of the lucky ticket—No. 969—and drew the suit. It is a very handsome set of furniture. The band realized over one hundred dollars on the drawing, they having sold over nineteen hundred tickets.

—Some man, who was pretty well under the sable influence of "bug juice," accused honest Abe Houser of stealing a $5 dollar bill from him. Houser was taken before 'Squire Foster and searched but only a dollar or so in change could be found on his person, and he was discharged. Tother fellow was 'charged, too.

—It always give us pleasure to note an honor accorded a Bellefonte lad. We allude to our bright young friend Mr. Will Keller who received a handsome gold medal, as a prize for being the best debater in a literary contest, which recently took place at Franklin and Marshall College, Lancaster.

IF A BODY MEET A BODY

the result is a collision, whether "coming thro' the rye," or not. Life is full of collisions. We are constantly colliding with somebody or something. If it isn't with our neighbors it is with some dread diseases that "knocks us off the track" and perhaps disables us for life. Women especially it seems, have to bear the brunt of more collisions and afflictions than mankind. In all cases of nervousness, bearing-down sensations, tenderness, periodical pains, sick headache, congestion, inflammation, or ulceration and all "female irregularities" and "weaknesses," Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription comes to the rescue of women as no other medicine does. It is the only medicine for women, sold by druggists, under a positive guarantee, from the manufacturers, that it will give satisfaction in every case, or money paid for it will be refunded. is one that promotes digestion, improves the appetite, cleanses the liver, purifies the blood, and stimulates brain and nerves without injurious reaction, and one that may be taken alike by adult or infant. Profane compounds, made of vile rum or bad whiskey, sweetened and flavored, under the titles of bitters, tonics, &c, produce effects far worse than the disease for which they are taken.

Vinegar Bitters is a pure tonic, a nervine without being narcotic, a purifier without poison, a liver tonic without purging, and above all, a life-giving stimulant without alcohol. The only medicine with such powers in the world.

A GENUINE TEMPERANCE BEVERAGE,

far surpassing alcohol in any shape as a tonic it might be called

since it stimulates, invigorates and regulates digestion, nutrition, secretion, excretion, respiration, and all the functions whereby life is maintained—we literally take in vitality in spoonsful.

It is too much to assert that the equal of Vinegar Bitters does not exist, and no counterpart or compound with similar virtues has ever been known.

CALIFORNIA,

if remarkable for nothing else, would be immortalized by the production of the medicinal fruits, roots and herbs of which this Bitters is composed. Many of them used by the Indians and the medical profession in the treatment of chills and fevers, rheumatism, catarrh, consumption, neuralgia, headaches, liver complaint, kidney disease, jaundice, gout, piles, boils, skin diseases, &c., &c., too numerous to mention, but easily understood when the action of the Bitters on the vital functions is remembered. THE OLD vs THE NEW

AT NINE O'CLOCK MONDAY MORNING THE COUNCIL FOR 1889 MET AND HELD ITS LAST SESSION AND IMMEDIATELY THEREAFTER

The New One Was Organized.

GAULT WAS ELECTED PRESIDENT BY THE DEMOCRATIC MEMBERS AND THEN FORSAKES HIS PARTY AND VOTES WITH THE DEMOCRATS, WHICH MEANS A DEMOCRATIC COUNCIL FOR 1890, THOUGH THE MAJORITY

Was Elected by the Republicans

Some Miscellaneous Business Transacted—Clerk, Borough Engineer, Water Works Superintendent and Street Commissioner Elected, and all the Standing Committees Appointed.

The Council for 1889 goes out with honor and credit to itself; the reports for the year disclosed much work and good standing. The new one was born midst trick and chichanery and if it it grows worse as it grows older it would have been better for its progenitors that it had never been born.

THE LAST MEETING.

Promptly at 9 o'clock on Monday morning President Frank Stover called the Bellefonte council together for the last time; Every member but Edward Brown, Jr., was in his place. The first thing done under the order of new business was to administer the oath to the new members elected at the recent election, who were, Isaac Longacre, North ward; W H Crissman, West ward; Wm. Jamison, South ward. The retiring members were Frank B. Stover, north ward; Robert Cole, west ward; and Ed. Brown, Jr., south ward.

Under the head of new business the old council heard a request from J W Gephart, Esq., asking exoneration of taxes on Pifer building—where the Y M C A now is—which exoneration was granted. Other exonerations were asked by several parties and granted. Bills were read and approved to the amount of $3,504,81.

Reports from the Chief Burgess, Treasurer, and the several committees were read and adopted after which the old council adjourned sine die and the new one at once went into session.

THE NEW ONE.

The first thing in order was the election of a President. George L. Potter was put in nomination by a republican member and Samuel Gault by a democrat member. By all right of precedence, time and experience, Potter is the man that should have been unanimously elected, and at the very least, should have received the undivided support of every republican. But it was soon plainly evident that support from the democrats had been bought by promises made, and the result was that with the four Democratic members and his own vote, Samuel Gault was elected President for the ensuing year. That act clearly demonstrated that Mr. G. had thus defined his position as being with the democratic side of the house. In other and plainer words he, for the empty honor of being made President of the town council, flunked the party that elected him by a large majority one year ago and went over to the enemy's ranks. Had there been any doubt in this direction it would all have been dispelled when, at the evening session, the voting for street commissioner was done and the appointments of committees made.

The next in the order of business was the election of a clerk, and here the new council displayed some good judgment in the unanimous election of Isaac Mitchell to that position. There was no other man named but it is known that another was drifting that way in the under current of sentiment of some of the council, but he failed to "get there."

Clement Dale was unanimously elected Borough solicitor, and R. Hamill Boal civil engineer. Mr. Samuel Rine was re-elected as superintendent of the borough water department. Next on the list was the election of street commissioner.

A petition from the citizens was presented nominating Joel Johnson for that position, but he wasn't "in the ring" and hence never got a vote, Hillibish named John H. Klinger as the choice of the republicans, and Gross named James Dolan, as the choice of the democrats. A half a dozen ballots were taken but every time it stood four for Klinger and four for Dolan—the president refusing to vote, Finally the balloting was stopped to be continued in the evening. Council then adjourned until 7 o'clock p. m.

THE EVENING SESSION.

It was promptly at seven o'clock when, with a full board around the table, President Samuel Gault called the council to order and the minutes of previous meeting were read which, with one correction, was adopted. The next thing was the appointing of standing committees for the ensuing year, and here again did the democratic principles of the newly elected republican president plainly show up, as all who study the following committees can not fail to see. The committees, as appointed, are as follows:

Finance—Potter, Bauer and Gross.

Street—Howley, Crissman and Jamison.

Water—Hillibish, Gross and Bauer.

Fire and Police—Gross, Hillibish and Longacre.

Nuisance—Longacre, Crissman and Jamison.

Market—Jamison, Potter and Howley

No comment necessary.

Mr. Potter moved to proceed to ballot for street commissioner, Motion seconded, submitt ed and carried.

Mr. Gross withdrew the name of James Dolan and substituted that of Charles Gehrett, so that the nominations stood Klinger and Gehrett. The clerk called the roll and polled the vote. The four democrats were solid for Gehrett while the four Republicans were solid for Klinger, and it remained with the president to cast the deciding ballot. This he did by voting for Gehrett, though it did seem to be against his conscience as he first named Klinger then recalled the vote and named Gehrett, but as the Democrats elected him president in the morning he had to support their man for street commissioner, and thus was Gehrett elected.

Council then decided to hire commissioner by the day and the rate of wages were fixed at $1.50 per day from the first of April to last of October, inclusive; from last of October to first of April at $1.25 per day.

A communication was presented from the Fire Marshalls calling attention of council to the building on Bridget Magill's property, Bishop street, which is in a tumble-down condition and very dangerous to passers by. Referred to Fire and Police committee for investigation and proper action.

Mr, Potter presents request of Mr. Daniel Garman to release the license fee against entertainments to be held in the new opera house he intends erecting; said lease to hold good for ten years. The council signified its willingness and Finance committee was instructed to prepare an ordinance—being a supplement to the ordinance of 1841—entirely covering the case, and to submit the same to council at its next regular meeting.

Water department superintendent informed council that the contract for supplying the water works with coal had expired on March first. It was moved and carried that the Clerk be authorized to advertise for bids for the supplying of coal for the same for the ensuing year.

By this time the new council was pretty thoroughly tired out and adjournment was next in order. After adjournment postmaster Feidler appeared relative to the placing of letter boxes, but he was too late.

NOTES ON THE MEETINGS.

If the republicans, as elected, had stood by their colors, Potter would have been the present President of the town council and Klinger would have been street commissioner.

Personally, there is nothing to be said against either of the persons that were elected; but officially and politically they will be a "wall flower" in the republican party of the future.

The new street commissioner, Charles Gehrett, and who must also be clerk of curb market, can neither read nor write. He will undoubtedly be a correct (?) accountant and time keeper.

The council erred by not re-electing Thomas Shaughensey as street commissioner. He has always proved efficient, correct and obliging, and it may be a long time before another as good can be found.

A half dozen citizens gathered to witness the first business done by the council for 1890.

All the reports for the preceding year will be published in this paper tomorrow.

Veidorfer is Again Free.

On Tuesday Doctors R J Young, of Snow Shoe, and J P Seibert, of this place, presented to the court a certificate to the effect that they had together examined the condition of John Forcey and that they now pronounce him out of danger. The Court then signified its willingness to accept bail for the release of Veidorfer in the sum of $5,000. John Uzzle immediately went on his bond and John Veidorfer went to his home in Snow Shoe township on the evening train.

CHAS. F. COOK, Boro. Treas.

He went for the Doctor.

It is not an unusual thing for persons to become excited and absent-minded in times of danger or even extreme cases of sickness. This was fully demonstrated Tuesday night in the case of Mr. Foster Williams. His child was suddenly seized with the croup—along about the "we sma' hours"—and Foster got so excited in his haste to procure a doctor that, according to his story told this morning, he jumped right out of bed and ran up street to Dr. Hoy's office From this we infer that he never even stopped to change his night clothes for suitable street attire, but went up the street at a 2.40 gait, clothed in the raiment as per "Verner's Ghost" and "Oh, ye Gods! perchance that morial man should meet you now; his soul would sink with terror, and his limbs would quake and tremble as if pursued by ten of his Satanic majesties." But nothing so unfortunate occurred to our friend Foster, though his absent-mindedness never forsook him even in the Doctor's den as he is willing now to bear ample testimony that the said doctor never even made a light by which to see in the choosing and preparation of the medicine he gave him.

Too short, too sweet, by far—"

Miller as a Lecturer.

John DeWitt Miller's lecture, "Uses of Ugliness," delivered before our Teachers' Institute last winter, was pronounced by every one who heard it the best in the course. The lecture is humorous, brilliant and instructive. Mr. Miller will draw a packed house the next time that he visits Indiana.—W. A. Cochran, Supt. Common Schools, Indiana Co., April 25, 1887.

Mr. Miller will be in Bellefonte on Friday evening and will deliver the above characteristic and humorous lecture in the court house. Tickets now on sale.

—If the people who complain of what the reporter writes about them would only consider what he does not write about them they would enshrine him in the freindliest corner of their heart. The waste basket in a daily newspaper office of any town does more to keep its citizens in good repute than any other agency, except fear of the law and the hereafter.

Personal Pencilings.

His Honor, Judge A O Furst, was in Lock Haven on Saturday.

Commissioner's clerk, Mr. J B Strohm, spent Sunday at his home in Pennsvalley.

Mr. James R. Hughes returned home this morning, after a few days spent out of town.

Miss Jennie Lukenbach, of this place is visiting her cousin, Miss Mame Meyer, at Centre Hall.

Mr. George T Bush returned this morning from a week's sojourn in the Quaker City.

Miss Ruie Tripple, of this place, is visiting her friend, Miss Annie Mills, in Lock Haven.

Mr. W H Keller, of Bellefonte, was registered at a prominent hotel in Philadelphia on Friday.

Mrs. B C Lyons and daughter, Miss Tillie, departed on Tuesday morning for Philadelphia, where they went to visit friends.

Col. D S Keller was in Clearfield on last Thursday and expressed himself as glad that he was not at home to witness the excitement on that day.

Miss Grace Houck, daughter of Rev. W. A. Houck, returned on Thursday evening from an extended visit to Williamsport and Lock Haven.

Mr. R G Foote, of the Mifflinburg Times, was in Bellefonte on Wednesday and called in to see us. He is a pleasant gentleman and we are glad to make his acquaintance.

Senator Peale and wife will leave this evening for Florida, the land of perpetual sunshine, and on the way will visit Birmingham, Alabama, New Orleans and other places, returning here about the middle of April next. We hope they will have a pleasant journey.

From Saturday's Philadelphia Times: "Senator S R Peale, of Lock Haven, ran down to the city yesterday and registered at the Lafayette. A bunch of other senators are at the Lafayette, including Reger Sherman, of Titusville, W W Betts, of Clearfield, and George W Jackson, of Bellefonte, Pa." The same paper says "Thomas Collins, the well known contractor, of Bellefonte, is in the city.

Houserville Happenings.

The sermon which was delivered (?) in the United Brethren church one last Sunday, by the Rev. Jackson, was no sermon at all. When the time came for services to commence the congregation, as well as the minister, had gathered together in a cold house. For some cause or other the fire did not get made in time for church and, the day being rather cold, the preacher, after accusing some of the members of "growing cold," took his departure for a warmer climate.

Mr. David Snyder, of Pennsvalley, visited friends and relatives in this place last week.

Mrs. Alfred Hoy, who has been sick for four weeks, is able to be around again.

Mr. Irvin Wirts, of Snow Shoe, was around visiting friends in this place recently.

The rumor is abroad that Mr. Abram Snyder contemplates having sale some time about the middle of this month.

SHORTY.

—Nothing is equal to a good daily newspaper in the home for general and local information. A home without a newspaper is like a well without a pump or bucket to draw its water. In this age of cheap newspapers no home should be without a daily paper. It helps greatly to lift up the standard of intelligence in the family and fosters a desire for gaining information, so very necessary in this age of rapid progress. It cultivates a taste for reading in the household.

Resumed Operations.

We are pleased to know that the strike at R. B. Wigton & Son's fire brick works at Philipsburg, has been of short duration, and that operations were resumed on Monday afternoon. The matter was adjusted, after a short consultation between the employes and Mr. W. H. Wigton, by the firm agreeing to adopt the two weeks pay system beginning on June 15th.

—County commissioner, M S Fiedler, has a sale of all his farm stock to-day at his home below Aaronsburg. John C Henderson, J C Meyer and Cyrus Goss will officially represent Centre county by their presence at the sale—they all having departed for that place on the 6 o'clock train this morning.

—It now transpires that the persons composing the Grant Match Factory stock company, in Philipsburg, did not lose all and "were left penniless," but only lost all the capital they had invested in that plant. This is better than we at first understood and we are glad of it.

FROM THE GRAVE.

THE LAST COMMUNICATION WRITTEN BY W SEELY HOPKINS ONLY

TWO DAYS BEFORE DEATH.

A Touching Appeal to the Court and Citizens of Centre County.

The following communication was placed in the hands of the W C T U for publication, the condemned man having sent a special request for their attention to it:

GENTLEMEN:

A man under sentence of death makes this his last plea to the Centre county Court for protection to all mankind; and, if the Court so desires it, they can have it after I am gone.

The Court has licensed the people to sell the curse that was the cause of my crime, and then I am brought before them and they sentence me to hang by the neck until I am dead; and I pray to God to so direct the Court that they may wipe out this terrible curse.

This county polled a majority of nearly 2,000 votes for Prohibition, which should be evidence that the people did not want the Court to grant license to sell the cursed stuff. I hope the good people will pray on to stop the sale of it, and I assure you their prayers will be answered—for it is certainly God's will, and his will must be done.

Take this jail, which has in it sixteen prisoners and the two-thirds of them are in on account of that curse—whiskey! In for crimes committed while drunk! Every license the court grants is just so much more tax on the tax payers of this county, and if you don't pay they will distress you for it. These drunken prisoners must be tried, clothed and fed at your expense. Think of it! and you can't help but coincide with me. Whosever hands this falls into, publish it. It may have some good effect, and it certainly can do no harm.

Look at Huntingdon county! Her jail has no murderers in it! It is not full of young men, serving out crimes done under the influence of whiskey! and Centre county can be a sister county if the Court so desires it, They can make the people contented and happy, instead of imposing the sentences of death upon them.

Yours,
WILLIAM S HOPKINS,
BELLEFONTE JAIL, Feb 12th, '90

A last request of the double murderer, Hopkins.

—Tuesday evening at 5.20 o'clock Mr Paul Sternberg will bid adieu to friends and home and start on a journey to the West never stopping until he pulls up in Seattle, Washington, where he goes to make his everlasting fortune and to "grow up with the country," per Horace Greely's advice. Paul is an enterprising young man and we predict for him a bright future and a successful life wherever he may choose to cast his lot. But we are sorry to lose him from Bellefonte. A young man of more than the ordinary fine social and business qualities, he is a general favorite. Bellefonte can ill afford to lose him, but—as it must be, we can only wish him well and say may God bless and prosper you wherever you may go.

—Send us the news when anybody dies, gets married, runs away, steals any thing, builds a house, makes a big sale, or whips his man—or wife—breaks his legs, gets his senses kicked out of him by a mule, or does anything that is in any way remarkable, and you have reasons to believe that you know as much about the occurence as anybody else. Don't wait for some other person to report it, or trust to us to find it out by instinct, but come and tell us all about it or send the facts on a postal card. In this way news is supplied and it takes a good supply of that necessary article to make a home paper. See if you cannot improve this year and let us know every item that transpires in your neighborhood.

If you want to buy a monument or grave stone, at little cost for good marble, call at Heisler & Gross' new Marble Works, Water street, near big spring, Bellefonte, Pa. f27-3w.

—The new president of town council lost a five cent lead pencil on Monday night. Wont some good republican contribute one to make good the loss? Send to this paper labeled "for president of town council," and we will be responsible for its safe delivery.

—Mr. John DeWitt Miller, will lecture in the court house on Friday night on the "Uses of Ugliness." It will be a humorous lecture and one that is much appreciated, we are told by those who have heard it. Mr. Miller is a very delightful and entertaining talker.

—Several card sharpers undertook to play the "racket" on an unsuspecting Englishman on the Bald Eagle Valley train on Friday. They succeeded so well that when they arrived in Tyrone the Englishman had them arrested and it cost them some money to get off.
